U.S., North Vietnam Said Still Far Apart

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam's chief peace negotiator said today that "up to now" the positions of the two sides "are far apart on military and political questions."

Xuan Thuy, arriving for the 162nd session of the Paris Peace talks, also told newsmen that he "strongly protests the fact that in recent days the Nixon administration is carrying out large scale bombing in North Vietnam."

He said American air attacks have been aimed at "populous regions, dikes, dams — and what is criminal — schools, just as the classes are being resumed."

U. S. Ambassador William J. Porter, told reporters, "It's absolutely incomprehensible that North Vietnam and the Viet Cong should simply reject out of hand" President Nixon's May 8 offer "to conclude a cease-fire and stop all of this killing."

Porter said the other side had never accepted any discussion of the proposal and added, "Certainly the mentality involved is something extraordinary as far as we are concerned."

South Vietnam's deputy negotiator, Nguyen Xuan Phong, said on arrival he hoped the Communist side finally realizes "it is in their own interest, now more than ever" to really negotiate an end to the war.

Phong substituted at the meeting for Ambassador Pham Dang Lam who was said to be indisposed.

In his speech to the session Phong strongly reiterated South Vietnam's rejection of the Viet Cong plan for a tripartite regime to replace that of President Nguyen Van Thieu in Saigon.

Wholesale Price Increase Bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of a broad range of wholesale food, industrial raw materials and manufactured products rose an average of three-tenths of one per cent last month, the government reported today.

The report by the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the increase included a rise of six-tenths of one per cent for farm products, processed foods and feeds, while industrial commodities increased two-tenths of one per cent.

The report said that in the past three months, wholesale prices rose at an annual rate of 6.7 per cent compared with 4.9 per cent in the first and second quarters of the year, and that food and feeds soared at an annual rate of 17.4 per cent in the third quarter.

In the 13 months so far of President Nixon's wage-price controls, wholesale prices have risen at an annual rate of 4.3 per cent, compared with a rate of 5.2 per cent in the nine months prior to the controls.

The September increase brought the government's Wholesale Price Index up to 120.2 of its 1967 base of 100. This means it cost wholesalers $120.20 last month on the average for goods worth $100 five years ago.

The index was up 5 per cent in the past year, the bureau said.

In food, the report said, fruits and vegetables declined six-tenths of one per cent in September but were up 33.3 per cent from a year ago; meats, poultry and fish dropped five-tenths of one per cent for the month and were up 12.1 per cent over the past year; egg prices shot up 15.7 per cent in September and were 6.6 per cent above a year earlier; milk increased seven-tenths of one per cent for the month and was 3 per cent above a year ago.

Among industrial prices, textiles were up two-tenths of one per cent for the month and 4.2 per cent for the year, leather products rose eight-tenths and 18.3 per cent respectively, and lumber prices rose three-tenths for the month and 10.6 per cent for the year.

The action she took was to call the Ohio Department of Agriculture Division of Weights and Measures... Although she would not give them her name, she did give them all the facts they needed for a quick investigation...

Ohio director of Agriculture Gene R. Abercrombie related the way in which his Department followed up this anonymous complaint... "ODA personnel from the Division of Weights and Measures immediately went to a same name chain store in Columbus," he said...

Five different sizes of curtains and draperies tested from the store proved to be mislabeled in that the package contents did not prove to be the same size as the label indicated... They were the same brand purchased by the lady at the Circleville store...

With the cooperation of the store manager and the manufacturer, some 1,200 pairs of curtains and draperies have been removed from the sale tables in Ohio stores...

"I have been contacted by letter from the curtain company," Director Abercrombie went on, "and they have been most reassuring that their own company inspection procedures are undergoing strict reorganization..."

Congress OKs $24.6 Billion Water Cleanup

Carries Nation Through 1984 On New Standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — By near unanimous votes, Congress has sent President Nixon a $24.6-billion antipollution bill which aims to purify the nation's waters by 1985.

The three-year authorization measure must be backed up with appropriations.

Final passage in both houses came within three hours Wednesday evening. The House passed the bill 366 to 11 and the Senate followed with a 74-0 vote.

If fully financed, the water-quality bill would provide $9.7 billion in fiscal year 1973, $6.95 billion in 1974 and $7.65 billion in 1975.

It would allot $356 million for the current year for waste-treatment works already authorized.

Other facets of the bill include: —A requirement that industries discharging waste into waters apply the best practicable control technology by July 1, 1977 and the best available by July 1, 1982.

$18 billion in grants to municipalities to build waste-treatment plants and improve sewage collection. The federal government would pay 75 per cent of the cost of building waste-treatment plants.

—Continuance of current water-quality standards plus limits on how many effluents a plant may pour into the nation's waters.

—Required government approval of state guidelines for issuance of permits for disposing effluents.

—Administration by the Army Corps of Engineers of a separate permit program for disposal of dredge or fill material in certain areas.

Congress Overrides Pension Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — With quick and decisive votes, Congress has overridden President Nixon's veto and granted 900,000 retired railroad workers a temporary 20-per-cent increase in pension payments.

Nixon vetoed the bill at noon Wednesday; by midafternoon, the House had voted 353 to 29 to override the veto, and a few hours later, the Senate voted 78 to 5 to override.

In both cases, the margin was far larger than the two-thirds majority required to upset the veto. The action means that the bill has become law.

The President said in his veto message that the pension hike would hasten the bankruptcy of the railroad retirement system. He protested that the bill provided no way to raise the extra funds for the higher payments.

Congress passed the bill last month in order to extend to retired railroad workers the same 20-per-cent increase voted earlier for Social Security recipients. Railroad workers are covered by a pension system separate from the Social Security system.

Nixon had reluctantly signed the Social Security increase after protesting that he bought it to high. It was attached to a debt-limit bill he needed in order to continue government operations.

Betts Backs Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Jackson Betts, R-Ohio, was the only Ohio congressman voting with the minority Wednesday as the House overrode, 353-29, President Nixon's veto of a bill increasing railroad retirement benefits by 20 per cent.

Congress May Force Tax Hike, Nixon Says

New Internationalism Urged In Major McGovern Talk

NEW YORK (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern said today

President Nixon's foreign policy is one of "unconscious isolationism" and pledged if elected to supplant it with what he called a new internationalism.

The South Dakota senator said he would as president extend diplomatic recognition to The People's Republic of China, a step Nixon has said is not in prospect in the foreseeable future, despite his own summit diplomacy in Peking.

As always, McGovern vowed to withdraw immediately from the war in Indochina, but the speech he prepared for the City Club of Cleveland was his first detailed account of his foreign policy intentions toward the rest of the world.

McGovern said the United States is isolated from allies and trading partners by "six gun diplomacy and failure to consult," and from the developing nations by attitudes that favor big business there.

"We are isolated from reality by the insistence that tough talk and big Pentagon budgets are somehow synonymous with national manhood," McGovern said.

"I suggest that we must reject this unconscious isolationism" in favor of a New Internationalism based not only upon our vital interests, but also upon the kind of nation we can and should be," he said.

McGovern thus sought to take the foreign policy offensive against Republicans who have charged that his proposals for defense cuts, withdrawal from Indochina and U.S. troop reductions in Europe add up to a new isolationism.

"Let us have the defense we need," McGovern said. "But let us not permit the insatiable appetite of our military to replace our good sense, and undermine the prospects for reduction in the balance of nuclear terror."

He said under Nixon "we are becoming a second-rate nation in the terms that will really count in the 1970s," in international economics, and cooperative aid for the developing nations.

McGovern issued his 13-page foreign policy manifesto as he campaigned in New York and Cleveland.

Bomb Blast Kills Man In Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — Bomb explosions killed one man and wrecked a Belfast store early today.

Patrick Connelly, 23, a Roman Catholic bricklayer, was killed and his parents and brother were wounded when a bomb went off as they watched television at home in Portadown, a predominantly Protestant industrial town south of Belfast. The bombing was blamed on Protestant extremists.

It was the 593rd confirmed fatality in three years of sectarian violence in Ulster.

A 200-pound bomb wrecked a Belfast Cooperative Society store in the city center and set a Cooperative Society warehouse ablaze. Firemen kept the flames from the neighboring Irish Times, a Catholic newspaper. Several other buildings were badly damaged.

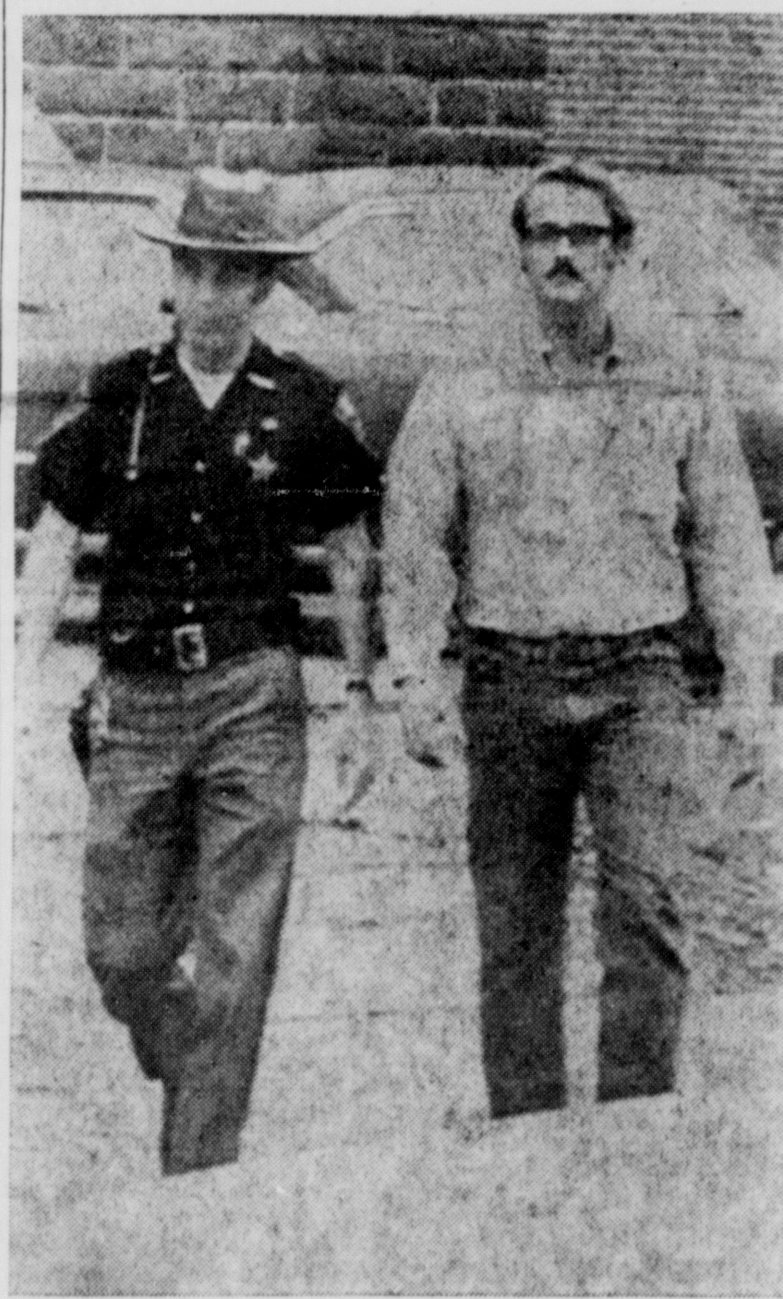

Guerrillas have already bombed 15 Cooperative Society stores, owned mainly by Protestants, causing damage estimated at more than $24 million.

McGovern To Ignore Court Watergate Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica has prohibited any more statements about the Watergate break-in and bugging case by those connected with it.

Sen. George McGovern said he doesn't think the ban applies to him, but he would speak out anyway. "I will not allow myself to be muzzled or intimidated by any politically motivated directions from Richard Nixon," he said.

Mango Charged In Infant's Death

TO HEARING — Michael Mango (right) is escorted to Municipal Court from his cell in the Pickaway County jail by Deputy Larry Holt. Mango was granted a continuance of his case. He is charged with "unlawfully, purposely and maliciously" killing Christopher Anthony Trent, an 8-month-old infant.

Michael Earl Mango, 23, Glencrest Ave., Chillicothe, was charged 5:45 p.m. Wednesday with second degree murder in the Aug. 16 death of 8-month-old Christopher Anthony Trent, his girlfriend's son.

The arrest was made by Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff following results of Mango's second polygraph examination taken earlier Wednesday at London's Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

His arrest followed nearly a month and a half investigation by Sheriff Radcliff and Assistant Prosecutor Steve Gussler, after county coroner Dr. Ray Carroll discovered that the infant died of a skull fracture.

He was found dead 9:54 a.m. Aug. 16 in the bedroom of his mother's house trailer home, Brown Ave., Williamsport. She is Rosemary Trent Mango. Mango and Miss Trent were married following the death of the infant, according to the investigation reports.

THOUGH the body was not detected until the morning of Aug. 16, the investigation revealed that the infant had been dead for some time, possibly since the night of Aug. 15.

Mango asked for a continuance of his case Thursday morning to allow time to consult an attorney.

Preliminary hearing is scheduled for 10 a.m. Oct. 13. Bond was increased from $10,000 to $25,000 at the request of William Duckworth, city attorney.

Mango was freed after signing a $20,000 recognizance bond. His father signed a $5000 cash bond.

Spending Curb Vote Scheduled

Nixon Authority May Be Widened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Advocates of a toughly enforced $250-billion government spending ceiling say they think they have the votes to give President Nixon virtually unlimited authority to tailor outlays to fit the limit.

The House is tentatively scheduled to vote next Tuesday on ceiling legislation. The Rules Committee voted to clear it Wednesday, but with one provision: that an amendment may be offered that would in effect limit the President to proposing specific spending cuts, but leave the decision with Congress.

Rep. John S. Anderson of Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Conference, told a reporter the outlook is good for retaining the full presidential authority in the bill.

"We need about 50 Democratic votes," Anderson said, "and I think Wilbur Mills should be able to bring along that many with him."

Mills, the Arkansas Democrat who heads the Ways and Means Committee, supports the stronger version. He said his count shows substantially more support among Democrats than Anderson said is needed.

The spending ceiling is part of a bill providing a $15-billion temporary increase in Treasury borrowing authority. Unless Congress acts, the debt limit will drop below the actual debt Nov. 1 and the government theoretically would be unable to pay its bills.

Utility Rate Variances Explained By PUCO

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohioans pay varying rates for telephone, gas, water and electric service—depending in most cases on where they live.

Ralph Nusken, secretary of the Public Utilities Commission, says all the fixed base utilities, with the exception of telephone companies, are given the statutory prerogative to negotiate rate ordinances with the municipalities which they serve.

"A number of utilities do negotiate these rates and the variances of rates paid in different cities are largely a matter which has been legislated by city council," Nusken says.

Telephone companies such as Ohio Bell—the state's largest with more than four million phones—have to negotiate their rates with the Utilities Commission. Ohio Bell currently is seeking a $165 million annual rate increase in PUCO hearings which got under way this week. Phone bills vary both as to services received and as to basic rates which the commission approves for given areas under a formula that takes into account plant investment, depreciation, and other factors.

Aside from municipal ordinances, Nusken says the entire area served by an individual utility may be broken up into several segments representing incorporated or unincorporated areas, or by rural and metropolitan areas.

"Therefore, the investment of plant by the same company may be different depending on the type of area which it serves. If there is more plant required to serve a rural area, for example, as opposed to proportionate amount of plant required to serve a metropolitan area, the valuation will necessarily result in higher rates for the sparsely populated area," the PUCO official said.

He said some utilities in Ohio divide their total area into geographic portions and bring applications to the Commission on a "segmented" basis. The companies do not always file for their entire area at one time so that different areas served by the same company may have varying rates, Nusken said.

Some utility customers in Ohio's border cities may pay

Claims Viet Talks Now 'Sensitive'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today "there will be no presidential tax increase" in 1973 but argued that "congressional overspending" might make one necessary.

Holding a 40-minute news conference in his Oval Office, Nixon also declared that Vietnam peace talks are "in a sensitive stage."

And he said that his search for the quickest possible settlement will in no way be affected by the fact that a presidential election will be held Nov. 7.

Nixon, in discussing his tax policy, said he will rarely visit the campaign trail until Congress adjourns because he wants to remain in Washington to "fight the battle against rising spending."

He promised a succession of veto messages aimed at last-minute legislation that exceed his budget goals.

The President was first asked for a response to charges by some Democrats that his administration has been corrupt.

He responded by listing such charges made by Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, and said some presidential advisers had suggested he respond in kind.

He said he rejected such advice because "I'm not going to dignify such comments."

As for what McGovern has been saying, Nixon declared "I think responsible members of the Democratic party will be turned off by this kind of campaign."

Nixon also fielded questions about the U.S.-Soviet grain deal and the bugging of Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate building.

Addressing himself to allegations that grain exporters profited from advance information about the $750 million grain agreement, Nixon said the FBI was looking into the matter and asserted, "if there has been any impropriety, any illegality, we want to know."

He pictured the grain accord as beneficial to the nation, saying it would add a billion dollars to farm income, create

B1 Tests Are Slated By Lockheed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. will perform tests on the Air Force's new B1 strategic bomber under a $17.2 million subcontract awarded to the company by North American Rockwell Corp., officials say.

Spokesmen for North American said Wednesday Lockheed California Co. of Burbank will perform fatigue tests and proofload tests on the aircraft, slated to replace the subsonic B52, mainstay of the Strategic Air Command (SAC) since the mid-1950s.

North American was awarded the $1.1 billion research, development, test and evaluation contract on June 5, 1970.

The B1 is expected to make its first flight in April 1974. After 15 months of flight tests, the secretary of defense will decide whether to start production.

Lockheed's fatigue tests — on a full-scale B1 — will simulate the wear expected during four operational lifetimes, officials said.

The proofload tests will be used to calibrate instruments for the flight tests and to determine stress distribution throughout the aircraft.

A fleet of 241 supersonic B1s is being sought by the Air Force. Designers say the B1 will be able to fly at low altitudes near the speed of sound using the ground as a shield from radar detection. The aircraft will be able to fly at twice the speed of sound at high altitudes.

Evidence Links Soldier To Army Grenade Deaths

FT. ORD, Calif. (AP) — A grenade pin found on Pvt. Billy Dean Smith, accused of the fragmentation grenade deaths of two Army lieutenants, bore marks linking it with the grenade lever found outside the blast scene, says an Army crime lab official.

Warrant Officer Otis Hensley Jr. of the Army Crime Laboratory at Ft. Gordon, Ga., said at Smith's "fragging" court-martial Wednesday that he compared the marks on the pin with lever marks transposed to a piece of soft solder.

"I concluded that the pin possessed tool marks on it which were made by the small hole on the lever," Hensley testified.

Defense attorney Luke McKissack objected to Hensley's testimony, claiming that tool mark identification was not an exact science. Asked by presiding officer Col. Rawls Frazier what he was trying to prove, McKissack said, "It's farcial. The points of comparison won't work."

But Hensley stuck to his testimony, adding that he "didn't expect to find identical characteristics throughout the entire comparison."

Earlier, a former member of Smith's unit in Vietnam testified that the defendant once said he "wouldn't mind" fragging his commanding officer but probably didn't mean it.

"I didn't think he was going to do it... it was common for enlisted men to talk this way because many of them didn't like the commanding officer and the first sergeant," said Darlis E. Headen, 21, of Greensboro, N.C.

Smith, 24, of Los Angeles, is charged with the 1971 murders at Bien Hoa base in Vietnam of Lts. Thomas A. Dellwo of Choteau, Mont., and Richard E. Harlan of Dallas, Tex., and the wounding of 1st Lt. Peter S. Higgins of Harrison, N.J.

He also is charged with the attempted murder of his commanding officer, Capt. Randall L. Rigby and 1st Sgt. Billy E. Willis. The prosecution contends that Rigby and Willis were the intended targets of the hand grenade Smith is accused with exploding.

Haig Reports To President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. has returned from Saigon to report to President Nixon on four days of secret consultations with South Vietnamese leaders.

Haig, who as deputy assistant for national security affairs is Henry Kissinger's top aide, reached the White House Wednesday night at about the same time Nixon returned from an overnight stay at Camp David.

Nixon dispatched Haig to Saigon last week to meet with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and other officials. Details of his talks weren't divulged, but they were believed to have centered on U.S.-Saigon positions in the Paris peace talks, including various cease fire formulas.

Haig originally was scheduled to leave Saigon Tuesday after three days of sessions with Thieu, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, and the U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. Frederick C. Weyand.

But the presidential adviser remained an extra day and held a four-hour meeting with Thieu and other ranking South Vietnamese officials.

Kennedy's List

Of POWs Rapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., says the North Vietnamese have supplied him with the names of five U.S. airmen being held as prisoners who were listed as missing in action by the Pentagon.

But a Defense Department spokesman said only two of the five were listed as missing and the other three already were known to be prisoners.

The spokesman said Kennedy caused "unnecessary anxiety" to families of prisoners by making premature disclosure of their names "in an inaccurate form." One of the five was listed as in the Navy when actually he was in the Air Force, the Pentagon said.

Police are also checking the theft of a bicycle belonging to Tim Dietrich, 164 E. High St. He told police the bike was taken 5:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Social Security-Welfare Bill Nears Final Senate Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — After shelving of the key question of welfare reform for as long as eight years, the Senate is moving toward a final decision on the massive Social Security-welfare bill.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., manager of the 969-page measure, said the Senate is over the hump on the bill and may be able to pass it tonight. But he said it is more likely the final vote will come Friday.

The fight over the most heavily contested part of the bill was settled Wednesday with a decision not to put any of three rival welfare-reform plans into effect but to provide for tests of all them.

This could mean that no effective reform will take place for as much as eight years, if, as expected, the House goes along with the test idea.

Meanwhile, the costly and rapidly expanding program of aid to families with dependent children will continue pretty much as at present.

The AFDC rolls have tripled in the past 10 years, and it is this program that most often is cited by critics of "the welfare mess."

In voting 46 to 40 for the amendment by Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., to test the three plans, the Senate junked the welfare program which evolved from many months of work in the Senate Finance Committee.

This would have required many of the parents now on the AFDC rolls, mostly mothers, to trade their welfare checks for jobs under a new federal agency.

However, the Senate in a long series of votes retained some peripheral provisions dealing with welfare families in the Finance Committee bill.

They would set up a big new day-care program to make it possible for more welfare mothers to go to work; provide work bonuses and wage supplements to try to induce welfare recipients to take jobs and employers to hire them; and create broad authority for prosecutors to try to find runaway fathers and make them support their families.

thousands of jobs, save taxpayers $200 million in grain storage charges and help ease the country's continuing balance of payments crisis.

As for the Watergate affair, Nixon repeated that he had no personal knowledge of what was going on there and said he is convinced no principal figures of his campaign committee were party to the bugging.

Recalling his probe of former State Department official Alger Hiss as a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Nixon said that inquiry was "basically a Sunday-school exercise" compared to the FBI's Watergate investigation.

He reported that 133 agents tracked down 1,800 leads and conducted 1,500 interviews in preparing the case that led to grand jury indictments of seven men accused of participating in the break-in and bugging operation.

Evidence Links Soldier To Army Grenade Deaths

FT. ORD, Calif. (AP) — A grenade pin found on Pvt. Billy Dean Smith, accused of the fragmentation grenade deaths of two Army lieutenants, bore marks linking it with the grenade lever found outside the blast scene, says an Army crime lab official.

Warrant Officer Otis Hensley Jr. of the Army Crime Laboratory at Ft. Gordon, Ga., said at Smith's "fragging" court-martial Wednesday that he compared the marks on the pin with lever marks transposed to a piece of soft solder.

"I concluded that the pin possessed tool marks on it which were made by the small hole on the lever," Hensley testified.

Defense attorney Luke McKissack objected to Hensley's testimony, claiming that tool mark identification was not an exact science. Asked by presiding officer Col. Rawls Frazier what he was trying to prove, McKissack said, "It's farcial. The points of comparison won't work."

But Hensley stuck to his testimony, adding that he "didn't expect to find identical characteristics throughout the entire comparison."

Earlier, a former member of Smith's unit in Vietnam testified that the defendant once said he "wouldn't mind" fragging his commanding officer but probably didn't mean it.

"I didn't think he was going to do it... it was common for enlisted men to talk this way because many of them didn't like the commanding officer and the first sergeant," said Darlis E. Headen, 21, of Greensboro, N.C.

Smith, 24, of Los Angeles, is charged with the 1971 murders at Bien Hoa base in Vietnam of Lts. Thomas A. Dellwo of Choteau, Mont., and Richard E. Harlan of Dallas, Tex., and the wounding of 1st Lt. Peter S. Higgins of Harrison, N.J.

He also is charged with the attempted murder of his commanding officer, Capt. Randall L. Rigby and 1st Sgt. Billy E. Willis. The prosecution contends that Rigby and Willis were the intended targets of the hand grenade Smith is accused with exploding.

Haig Reports To President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. has returned from Saigon to report to President Nixon on four days of secret consultations with South Vietnamese leaders.

Haig, who as deputy assistant for national security affairs is Henry Kissinger's top aide, reached the White House Wednesday night at about the same time Nixon returned from an overnight stay at Camp David.

Nixon dispatched Haig to Saigon last week to meet with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and other officials. Details of his talks weren't divulged, but they were believed to have centered on U.S.-Saigon positions in the Paris peace talks, including various cease fire formulas.

Haig originally was scheduled to leave Saigon Tuesday after three days of sessions with Thieu, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, and the U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. Frederick C. Weyand.

But the presidential adviser remained an extra day and held a four-hour meeting with Thieu and other ranking South Vietnamese officials.

Kennedy's List Of POWs Rapped

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., says the North Vietnamese have supplied him with the names of five U.S. airmen being held as prisoners who were listed as missing in action by the Pentagon.

But a Defense Department spokesman said only two of the five were listed as missing and the other three already were known to be prisoners.

The spokesman said Kennedy caused "unnecessary anxiety" to families of prisoners by making premature disclosure of their names "in an inaccurate form." One of the five was listed as in the Navy when actually he was in the Air Force, the Pentagon said.

Cameras Stolen At Local Store

City police are investigating the theft of five cameras from the Buckeye Mart store, Lancaster Pike, sometime Tuesday.

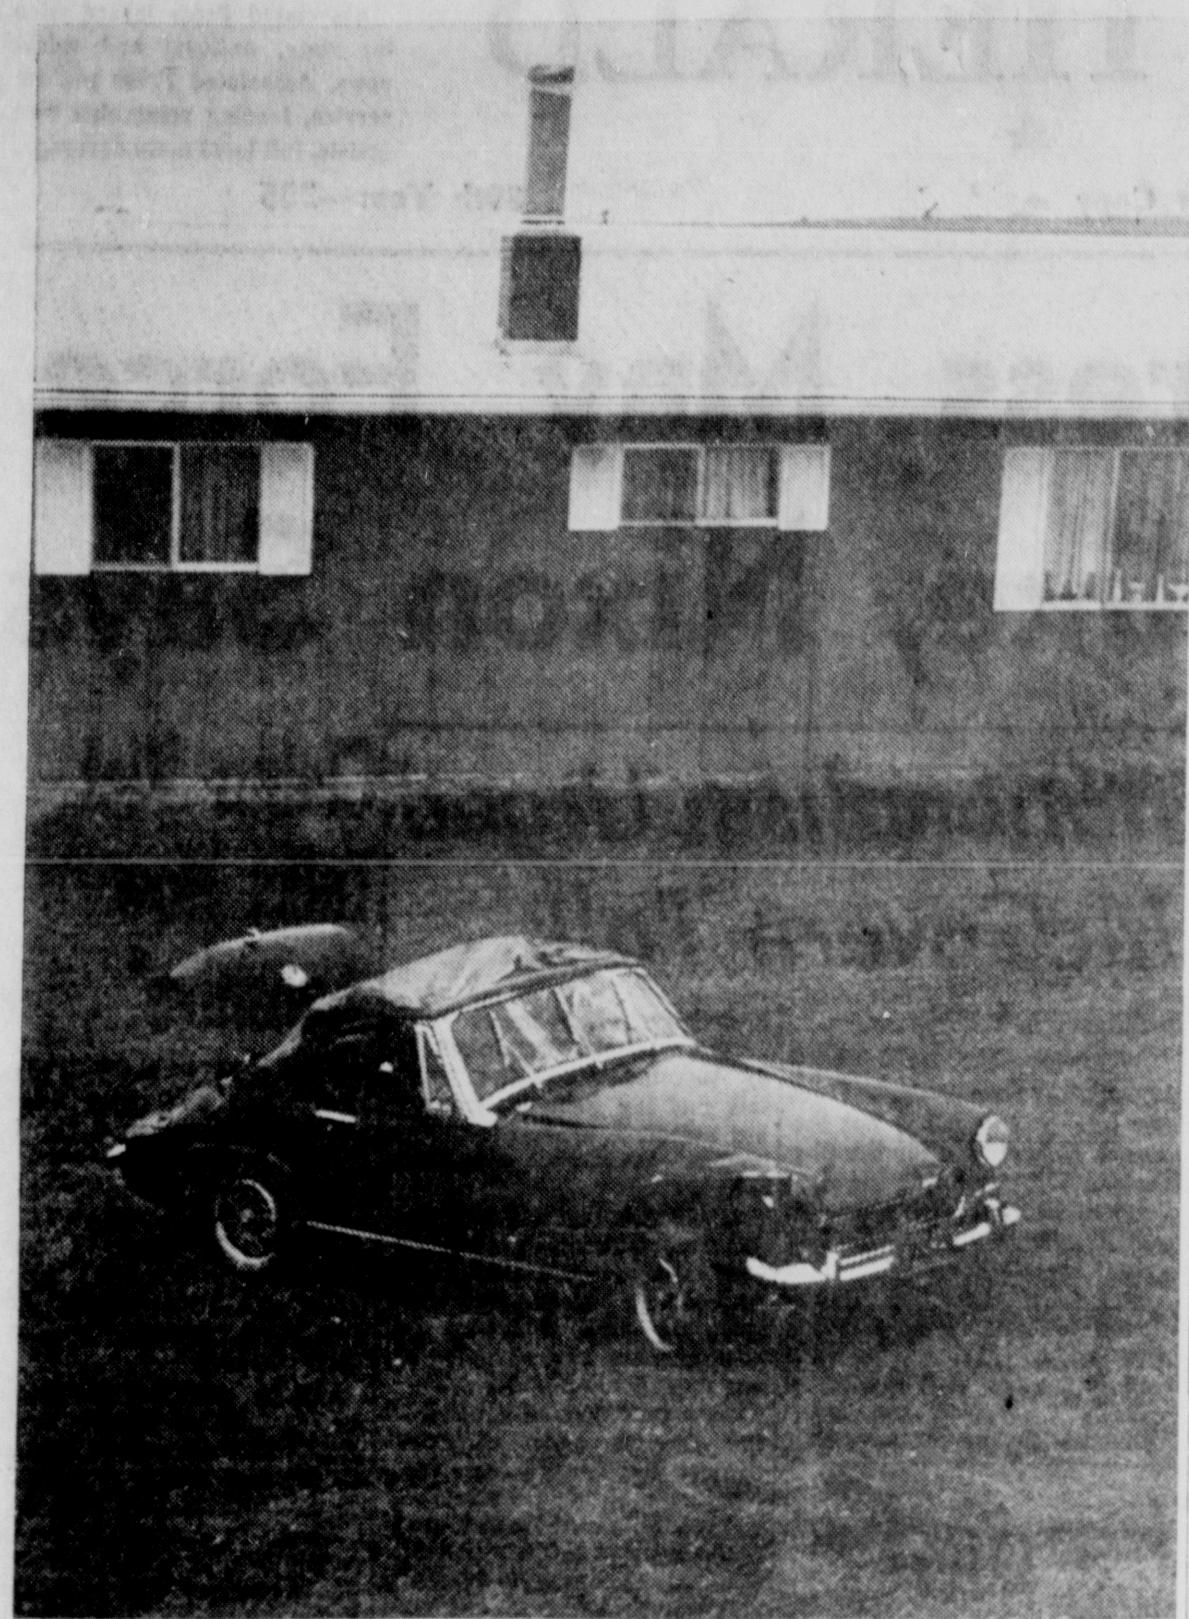

William Bresler Jr., assistant manager, told police the Polaroid cameras, valued at $566.49, were taken from a display shelf at the rear of the store between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Police are also checking the theft of a bicycle belonging to Tim Dietrich, 164 E. High St. He told police the bike was taken 5:30 p.m. Wednesday.

NO PARKING — The small car, owned by Barry D. Smith, 23, Route 1, Stoutsville, shouldn't be parked in the front lawn of the Guy Jacobs home, Route 5. The car spun off Route 188 Wednesday afternoon, flipped in the air, and came to rest on its wheels where pictured. Luckily, Smith suffered only minor injuries.

Sheriff's Office Reports 2 Injured In Accidents

Two people were injured in separate traffic accidents Wednesday on rain-slicked county roads, according to the sheriff's Department.

Barry D. Smith, 23, Route 1, Stoutsville, lost control of his car on fresh-paved Route 188, just north of the Bolender-Pontious Road intersection, and slid down a steep embankment onto the front lawn of the Guy O. Jacobs house, Route 5.

Smith, who suffered abrasions and contusions of his forehead, a lacerated nose and possible back injuries, said the car flipped over while dropping off the road.

However, the small foreign convertible, landed on its wheels.

John F. Bass, 39, Columbus, was admitted to Berger Hospital for treatment of a lacerated scalp, a lacerated left thumb and internal injuries, after he lost control of his pickup truck on Route 752 10:16 p.m. Wednesday.

According to Deputy Ray Ratcliff, Bass was driving east on Route 752, when he lost control of the truck to the right. It came back to the road surface, but crossed the center line and crashed into the left ditch, ripping out 100 feet of wire fence and six posts owned by Gladys Cummins, Route 1, Ashville.

Social Security-Welfare Bill Nears Final Senate Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — After shelving of the key question of welfare reform for as long as eight years, the Senate is moving toward a final decision on the massive Social Security-welfare bill.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., manager of the 969-page measure, said the Senate is over the hump on the bill and may be able to pass it tonight. But he said it is more likely the final vote will come Friday.

The fight over the most heavily contested part of the bill was settled Wednesday with a decision not to put any of three rival welfare-reform plans into effect but to provide for tests of all them.

This could mean that no effective reform will take place for as much as eight years, if, as expected the House goes along with the test idea.

Meanwhile, the costly and rapidly expanding program of aid to families with dependent children will continue pretty much as at present.

The AFDC rolls have tripled in the past 10 years, and it is this program that most often is cited by critics of "the welfare mess."

In voting 46 to 40 for the amendment by Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-DeL., to test the three plans, the Senate junked the welfare program which evolved from many months of work in the Senate Finance Committee.

thousands of jobs, save taxpayers $200 million in grain storage charges and help ease the country's continuing balance of payments crisis.

As for the Watergate affair, Nixon repeated that he had no personal knowledge of what was going on there and said he is convinced no principal figures of his campaign committee were party to the bugging.

Recalling his probe of former State Department official Alger Hiss as a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Nixon said that inquiry was "basically a Sunday-school exercise" compared to the FBI's Watergate investigation.

He reported that 133 agents tracked down 1,800 leads and conducted 1,500 interviews in preparing the case that led to grand jury indictments of seven men accused of participating in the break-in and bugging operation.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Ignorant, Uneducated Not Synonyms

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Louie) pleases me in every way. He's kind and generous, doesn't drink or chase, and he has been a wonderful father to our children. He has always been a good provider. He owns a small construction business and we have a lovely home, two cars, nice clothes and money in the bank. I have never had to work outside the home, and I do his bookkeeping.

My problem is my relatives. They are always making dirty remarks about how "ignorant" Louie is. (Never to his face.) It's true, Louie can sign his name, but that's about all. As a child he was poor, and sickly and he never made it through the third grade.

Please tell me what to say to my relatives who never pass up a chance to tell me how "ignorant" my husband is. (P.S. When my college educated brother needed a loan, who do you think gave him the money? My "ignorant" husband.)

SATISFIED WITH LOUIE DEAR ABBY: Try this: "There is a vast difference between an 'ignorant' person and an 'uneducated' one. Louie may be uneducated, but he is far from ignorant. Many educated people are ignorant, and there are many who have had no education to speak of, but are intelligent. If Louie's lack of education offends you, why don't you just leave us alone?"

DEAR ABBY: Is there such a thing as a compulsive talker? If so, my wife leads the parade. She talks incessantly from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m. And then she wonders why she's tired all the time.

Isn't it a fact that talking continuously uses up much energy and makes the talker tired?

STOP THE SANTA ANA WIND

DEAR STOP: In answer to your first question: Yes. There is such a thing as a compulsive talker. And you will usually find them married to people with ulcers, high blood pressure and nervous indigestion. And yes, continuous talking can make one tired.

But not half as tired as those who have to listen to it.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "stumped" struck a responsive chord in me. I, too, knew a church elder and pillar of the community who was in the habit of being "affectionate" with women and young girls.

On his 74th birthday he kept asking me for a "birthday hug." Finally, he pulled me into an empty room in the church and gave me the most obscene hug I had ever experienced. I was only 12, and he was my Sunday school teacher. Naturally I was shocked, and the guilt and shame of that "birthday hug" haunted me for years. I never even told my mother. I was so ashamed and frightened.

Abby, I've read your column since I was a child growing up in Chicago, and I'm sure young girls today still read your column as I did then. Should this be printed, I hope all adolescent girls who have similar experiences will do themselves a favor and tell some adult they respect and trust. My self doubts and shameful feelings would be dispelled if they did.

CONFIDENTIAL to "Hopeful," the 19-year-old male who has been praying daily. "Whatever ye ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." Please send me your name and address. I am familiar with your "problem" and think I can help you. It will be kept absolutely confidential.

Irish Chieftain Escapes Death

BELFAST (AP) — A sniper fired Wednesday at William Craig, leader of Northern Ireland's militant Protestant Vanguard Movement, but did not hit him, police said.

Craig was travelling in a car near Lisburn—where the British army has its Northern Ireland headquarters—when three shots were fired, police reported.

The assailant escaped in another car. Craig would make no comment on his escape.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — An organic food venture is going badly here because its operators say housewives "think that a limp, small vegetable must have something wrong with it."

But despite customer reluctance, the youthful managers of the Goodnews, Sunshine, Fruit and Vegetable Co. are determined to make a go of it and their goal is education rather than profits.

Goodnews, which employs seven persons full time, is sponsored by a community service project. The idea is to introduce underprivileged and minority youths to farm work and the wholesale and retail businesses.

"I just know it's going to work," said Barbara Castleman, 30, who manages the retail stand. "We have to educate the consumers, too. People are afraid of something they don't know about."

"We do not use sprays and chemicals on our produce," said Barbara. "But the main problem we now face is that people do not like the looks of the vegetables. Our carrots look like short, squat Bugs Bunny type and housewives are used to seeing long, slender crisp ones in the stores — pre-packaged too."

"They think that a limp, small vegetable must have something wrong with it. Some persons have never seen a carrot right out of the ground and they are horrified."

Customer education falls largely to Brian Feenstra, 18, who travels through the city in a cartreuse pickup truck, ringing cowbells and delivering sales talks on the virtues of green beans, red potatoes, squash and watermelons grown only with rice hulls, straw.

Pope Meets With Heath On Ireland

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI met British Prime Minister Edward Heath Wednesday and told him Roman Catholics "will ever be among the first" to help bring "peace in justice" to Northern Ireland.

Heath assured the pontiff that it was "our firm purpose to work for the ending of violence in Northern Ireland." But he said "the power of political leaders in our democratic society is, or course, severely limited."

The Pope greeted Heath at the door of the Pontiff's private library in the Apostolic Palace and they shook hands warmly.

In his 400-word speech in English to the prime minister, the Pope hailed Britain's decision to join the Common Market and said:

"In so doing, not only will she be furthering the cause of the brotherhood of all men, but she will also be bringing closer the day when the goal of universal peace and justice will finally be attained."

"It is likewise our prayerful hope," the Pope said, "that peace in justice may soon be established in Northern Ireland. . . . We trust that whatever obstacles hinder the solution of the present problem will speedily be eliminated."

Heath and the Pope reviewed a wide range of problems including the Middle East, strife in Uganda and the war in Vietnam.

About 17,000 snakes were collected in Manitoba in 1971 for use in scientific research and university laboratories.

Meanwhile, the Command disclosed in a delayed report that three American helicopters supporting South Vietnamese troops were hit by enemy ground fire within an hour of each other Monday near the district town of Ben Cat, 25 miles north of Saigon.

The Command said two of the helicopters sustained light damage and returned safely to their bases, while the third made a crash-landing and was destroyed. A total of three crewmen were wounded in the three incidents, the Command said.

Senior officers reported that South Vietnamese field commanders had shifted their forces closer to Saigon to defend major installations near the South Vietnamese capita including the big base at Bien Hoa and Long Binh where hundreds of American support troops and airmen are still stationed.

Thirty B52 bombers struck enemy targets on four sides of Saigon. U.S. officers said the strikes were aimed primarily at new stockpiles of war materials and were ordered intensified after earlier raids proved successful.

Over North Vietnam, Typhoon Lorna sharply curtailed U.S. air operations, military sources said. The U.S. Command reported only 120 fighter-bomber strikes over the North Tuesday.

The U.S. 7th Fleet reported the Enterprise, the world's only nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, returned to the war zone Tuesday and some of its 75 jets flew missions against enemy targets in South Vietnam. The 90,000-ton carrier replaces the Hancock, leaving the strength of the 7th fleet at six carriers.

Military sources said the controversial F111 swing-wing fighter-bombers remained out of combat after one of the jets mysteriously vanished with two crewmen aboard Thursday night.

Over North Vietnam, Typhoon Lorna sharply curtailed U.S. air operations, military sources said. The U.S. Command reported only 120 fighter-bomber strikes over the North Tuesday.

The U.S. 7th Fleet reported the Enterprise, the world's only nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, returned to the war zone Tuesday and some of its 75 jets flew missions against enemy targets in South Vietnam. The 90,000-ton carrier replaces the Hancock, leaving the strength of the 7th fleet at six carriers.

Military sources said the controversial F111 swing-wing fighter-bombers remained out of combat after one of the jets mysteriously vanished with two crewmen aboard Thursday night.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Ignorant, Uneducated Not Synonyms

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Louie) pleases me in every way. He's kind and generous, doesn't drink or chase, and he has been a wonderful father to our children. He has always been a good provider. He owns a small construction business and we have a lovely home, two cars, nice clothes and money in the bank. I have never had to work outside the home, and I do his bookkeeping.

My problem is my relatives. They are always making dirty remarks about how "ignorant" Louie is. (Never to his face.) It's true, Louie can sign his name, but that's about all. As a child he was poor, and sickly and he never made it through the third grade.

Please tell me what to say to my relatives who never pass up a chance to tell me how "ignorant" my husband is. (P.S. When my college educated brother needed a loan, who do you think gave him the money? My "ignorant" husband.)

SATISFIED WITH LOUIE DEAR ABBY: Try this: "There is a vast difference between an 'ignorant' person and an 'uneducated' one. Louie may be uneducated, but he is far from ignorant. Many educated people are ignorant, and there are many who have had no education to speak of, but are intelligent. If Louie's lack of education offends you, why don't you just leave us alone?"

DEAR ABBY: Is there such a thing as a compulsive talker? If so, my wife leads the parade. She talks incessantly from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m. And then she wonders why she's tired all the time.

Isn't it a fact that talking continuously uses up much energy and makes the talker tired?

STOP THE SANTA ANA WIND

DEAR STOP: In answer to your first question: Yes, there is such a thing as a compulsive talker. And you will usually find them married to people with ulcers, high blood pressure and nervous indigestion. And yes, continuous talking can make one tired.

But not half as tired as those who have to listen to it.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "stumped" struck a responsive chord in me. I, too, knew a church elder and pillar of the community who was in the habit of being "affectionate" with women and young girls.

On his 74th birthday he kept asking me for a "birthday hug." Finally, he pulled me into an empty room in the church and gave me the most obscene hug I had ever experienced. I was only 12, and he was my Sunday school teacher. Naturally I was shocked, and the guilt and shame of that "birthday hug" haunted me for years. I never even told my mother. I was so ashamed and frightened.

Abby, I've read your column since I was a child growing up in Chicago, and I'm sure young girls today still read your column as I did then. Should this be printed, I hope all adolescent girls who have similar experiences will do themselves a favor and tell some adult they respect and trust. My self doubts and shameful feelings would be dispelled if they did.

CONFIDENTIAL to "Hopeful," the 19-year-old male who has been praying daily. "Whatever ye ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." Please send me your name and address. I am familiar with your "problem" and think I can help you. It will be kept absolutely confidential.

Irish Chieftain Escapes Death

BELFAST (AP) — A sniper fired Wednesday at William Craig, leader of Northern Ireland's militant Protestant Vanguard Movement, but did not hit him, police said.

Craig was travelling in a car near Lisburn—where the British army has its Northern Ireland headquarters—when three shots were fired, police reported.

The assailant escaped in another car.

Craig would make no comment on his escape.

Organic Food Venture Not Going Well For Group

By RODNEY ANGOVE
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — An organic food venture is going badly here because its operators say housewives "think that a limp, small vegetable must have something wrong with it."

But despite customer reluctance, the youthful managers of the Goodnews, Sunshine, Fruit and Vegetable Co. are determined to make a go of it and their goal is education rather than profits.

Goodnews, which employs seven persons full time, is sponsored by a construction firm as a community service project. The idea is to introduce underprivileged and minority youths to farm work and the wholesale and retail businesses.

"I just know it's going to work," said Barbara Castleman, 30, who manages the retail stand. "We have to educate the consumers, too. People are afraid of something they don't know about."

"We do not use sprays and chemicals on our produce," said Barbara. "But the main problem we now face is that people do not like the looks of the vegetables. Our carrots look like short, squat Bugs Bunny type and housewives are used to seeing long, slender crisp ones in the stores — pre-packaged too."

"They think that a limp, small vegetable must have something wrong with it. Some persons have never seen a carrot right out of the ground and they are horrified."

Customer education falls largely to Brian Feenstra, 18, who travels through the city in a chartreuse pickup truck, ringing cowbells and delivering sales talks on the virtues of green beans, red potatoes, squash and watermelons grown only with rice hulls, straw, composts and manure. Sales are best in the lower-income neighborhood along the route, where housewives wait for Brian on the street corners. Brian. "There, people won't even come out of the house."

Pope Meets With Heath On Ireland

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI met British Prime Minister Edward Heath Wednesday and told him Roman Catholics "will ever be among the first" to help bring "peace in justice" to Northern Ireland.

Heath assured the pontiff that it was "our firm purpose to work for the ending of violence in Northern Ireland." But he said "the power of political leaders in our democratic society is, or course, severely limited."

The Pope greeted Heath at the door of the Pontiff's private library in the Apostolic Palace and they shook hands warmly.

In his 400-word speech in English to the prime minister, the Pope hailed Britain's decision to join the Common Market and said:

"In so doing, not only will she be furthering the cause of the brotherhood of all men, but she will also be bringing closer the day when the goal of universal peace and justice will finally be attained."

"It is likewise our prayerful hope," the Pope said, "that peace in justice may soon be established in Northern Ireland . . . We trust that whatever obstacles hinder the solution of the present problem will speedily be eliminated."

Heath and the Pope reviewed a wide range of problems including the Middle East, strife in Uganda and the war in Vietnam.

About 17,000 snakes were collected in Manitoba in 1971 for use in scientific research and university laboratories.

Looking Backward

To many persons it must seem like more than 31 years ago that the stage was being set for U.S. entrance into World War II. Thirty-one years ago this country was still officially at peace, but aid had been extended to the Allies, and Washington was engaged in a diplomatic hassle with the Japanese which was to continue until the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Then, of course, the fat was in the fire, and the long struggle to defeat Germany and Japan began. The victory was not easily won, although in retrospect it may appear that there could have been no other outcome. Likewise, in taking a backward glance at wars won, the cost of the struggle is frequently overlooked.

The years that have passed since this country's involvement in World

War II have not been years of peace, but despite the huge cost of the Korean and Vietnam wars, the U.S. has made great economic progress. Despite a vastly inflated dollar, the standard of living is considerably higher than it was three decades ago.

If the years that have passed since World War II ended have not followed the pattern outlined by either extreme optimists or dour pessimists, this is understandable. No one can accurately predict events 10 years in advance in normal times, and no one would term the decades of the mid-century normal.

What will the remainder of the decade of the '70s bring? Some seers are so brash as to make all sorts of predictions, but many an American would be content if he could foresee events of the next 10 months.

Ever Upward

Price rises continue despite government efforts to halt the trend. The best government statisticians can come up with is that the overall rise has been slowed.

But there is no downturn in any category. Until some prices at least recede, inflation will continue.

The public has become so thoroughly accustomed to paying more than formerly when buying, that if prices were to begin to show genuine reductions, this development would be widely viewed with suspicion. The presence of a gimmick would be suspected.

This is a rut the public must abandon ultimately, because it is an illusion that permanent prosperity can be founded on debt and air. Rising prices spur activity and produce wealth to a point, but then fantasy eventually replaces reality.

Bad Press

By JEFFERY HART

If you want a sober treatment of the current political situation in Greece, then you must read "Greece Without Columns," a new book by London Sunday Times Correspondent David Holden. Holden concludes that the colonels' popular image as fascist least is undeserved.

But if so, how is it that the colonels have such a bad image in Western Europe and the U.S.? Why should Sen. George McGovern's pledge to terminate all aid to that regime be regarded not as a joke or an absurdity but as a plausible policy move?

Holden has some suggestions to make.

He takes note, for example, of the widespread but romantic notion that Greece and democracy are somehow closely linked. Thus it is always being said that the Greeks invented the word democracy as well as the political form; and it is true that Athens enjoyed a golden age of democratic government under Pericles. But the words oligarchy and tyranny are also Greek in derivation. Sparta and Alexander the Great were just as Greek as Pericles. And the course of Greek politics, ancient and modern, has been turbulent and violent, its typical regimes anything but Periclean.

As a matter of fact, democracy scarcely seems to flourish in the lands bordering the Mediterranean. It failed in the Iberian Peninsula. It never had much of an existence in the Balkans. There are many who think that it is on its last legs in Greece. There are many soon be dealing with a set of Italian colonels. No doubt for cultural and social reasons, Israel seems the only country in the area where parliamentary government is firmly rooted.

Holden has an interesting explanation for the Greek colonels' uniquely bad press. He points out that those most immediately damaged by the coup d'etat in 1967 were also those with the most access to the European and American media.

The coup was directed against the political establishment in Athens, the leaders of which were well known outside of Greece and possessed contacts in the other Western capitals. It also struck at the Greek journalists, media people, and intellectuals of the sort that are familiar participants in international conferences on this or that, who lecture in foreign universities, and who share the assumptions of their European and American counterparts. Andreas Papandreu, who taught economics at Berkeley, returned to Athens for an unsuccessful fling in Greek politics, and now is in exile in Canada, represents the type.

The colonels, in contrast were unknown and provincial. And not only did they abolish parliamentary democracy, impose censorship and the like. They also exhibited all kinds of provincial tastes. They had a lamentable regard for traditional religion. They railed against bikinis. The spoke hardly any English or French.

Holden is rather convincing that we shall have to deal with regimes of this sort, in Greece and elsewhere, whether we like it or not. And moral posturing a la McGovern is unlikely to change that fact.

OF YOUR LIFE IS LARGELY

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH... by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Within a space of one half hour, two simple experiences highlighted a characteristic picture of man and his illnesses.

A tense, irritated taxi driver said as I entered the cab, "No wonder I have ulcers, with people like that."

He was referring to his last fare who apparently had hesitated a moment to long in finding the exact change.

Within minutes I arrived at the hospital. The very first person I encountered was the elevator man who, in response to my "Good morning" said, "A job like this could give you an ulcer."

Apparently, twice on the way down from the tenth floor, the door had opened to the "ghost" of someone who had rung the bell and then left.

The coincidence of these two similar personal contacts emphasized to me that almost everyone, rightly or not, seems to consider that his job is the ulcer-producing one.

The advertising executive, the bank manager, the doctor, the lawyer, the shoe salesman, the sanitation worker, and all the other Indian chiefs all seem to adopt the doubtful prestige that their occupation produces the most, the biggest and the worst stomach ulcers.

No one in any occupation, in any social circumstance, man or woman, child and adolescent, is ever completely free from business, professional, or scholastic pressures. But these pressures are no excuse for the person who "eats himself up alive," and develops ulcers or other evidences of stress in our modern civilization.

I have often wondered how many people understand what a stomach ulcer or a duodenal ulcer really is.

Perhaps if they did they would modify their physical and emotional patterns of living, and spare themselves the unpleasant and debilitating symptoms that can accompany these ulcers.

Normally, hydrochloric acid and gastric juices, especially, which helps to digest food, are produced in the stomach.

When there is a long period of emotional stress, dietary or alcoholic indiscretion, or overuse of tobacco, the acid and the pepsin increase in the stomach, irritate the delicate lining, and may produce the ulcer or "tiny sore."

Then, the cycle begins. Pain and discomfort increase emotional tension, more cigarettes are consumed, more acid is produced, the larger the ulcer becomes, the more the pain, the greater the tension.

The pain of an ulcer is described as a constant, gnawing ache, similar to that of a hunger pain. Almost always it is relieved by drinking milk and taking antacids which neutralizes the stomach juices.

Filling the stomach with simple, easily digested bland foods removes the "hunger pains" because the stomach wall has something to contract down on.

When once the diagnosis is made clinically (in the doctor's office), and confirmed by X-ray, the fixed pattern of living must be changed if the stomach ulcer or the duodenal (intestinal) ulcer is to be given a rightful chance to heal.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Universities seldom have won honors for financial acumen or administrative know-how, despite their other intellectual qualities.

They have done a certain amount of long-range planning, says Stephen Hall, vice president of Harvard, but "in general, they haven't been too intelligent about how they used their money."

When Hall was hired to handle a $40-million administrative budget early last year he found his 10 departments using "municipal accounting," or spending against a set sum and hoping to have something left.

His inheritance, Hall said, was an elaborate system for keeping track of costs, of accounting for money already spent, but with less emphasis on plotting the most effective use of the money in achieving university goals.

"Only one department broke down its budget on a monthly basis," said Hall, a former director of operations support at JTT-Sheraton. Without such a breakdown, progress couldn't be monitored or corrections begun.

Hall now claims that these same department heads have become so financially aware and proficient that, as a team, "they could go into many a large corporation and effect a 100 per cent improvement."

Moreover, he added, Harvard would like to share its knowledge with other universities. "We'll all come out better off if we do. We're all in the same business."

The Harvard administrative plan began to take shape with weekly staff meetings of Hall and the administrators, whose responsibilities ranged from the university press to food services to buildings and grounds, and so on.

From these meetings — strictly limited to one early morning hour because "staff meetings fail if they are strung out" — Hall and the administrators began working out a written management plan made up of seven basic elements.

The first of these in the current management plan, the mission, is always stated in one sentence. This, Hall feels, forces each administrator to define sharply the contribution his department should make to the university.

Next, each administrator lists the scope of his job, the parameters of his responsibility, and lists also the amount that should be required to maintain that scope. Assumptions underlying the budget also are listed.

In food services, for example, G. Graham Hurlburt assumes, among other things, "that the cost of raw food will increase 7 per cent."

The next element is called "future impact," and it includes all those contingencies that might impact the plan. In this category, Hurlburt lists "union negotiations-spring 1973. Pressure will be on the side of higher wages."

Following that, objectives are listed, both for the immediate year and for the next five. "To effectively integrate the combined work forces of Harvard and Radcliffe," is one near-term objective.

There follows a summation, in which the administrator verbalizes his concerns and hopes. The final section includes the usual charts, "but now they are tied into a system that makes them meaningful."

Before the final draft of the management plan is printed, Hall sits down individually with the administrators for a head to head, adversary discussion of the contents. These may last four hours. Sometimes there are several meetings.

Although these sessions can be blunt and grating, Hall claims that when the two men leave the room they leave behind their frictions, that they have reached a consensus, and that they are both committed to a common goal.

"This is where many institutions, corporations included, fail," he said. "They call it management by objectives but what they mean is that they set the objectives and you get fired if you don't meet them."

Instead, "we negotiate objectives and we both become committed to them. Negotiation leads to total commitment."

It is from this management book that Hall obtains the overall view of his operations. It is the basis also for a monthly progress report that is submitted to the president and the administrative visiting committee.

According To Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The man I feel sorriest for in America is the man who doesn't like his job or enjoy his work.

Of course, all of us at times complain about the ordeal by which we earn our daily bread. We may dislike the hours we work or find the man at the next desk or machine a dull no-nonsense, the girls in the office too homely, the straw boss an anachronistic Neanderthal, or become annoyed because the office cafeteria serves too few meatballs with the spaghetti.

But, on the whole, most of us are reasonably content with the work we do and wish only that it would pay better.

It must be horribly galling to the soul, however, actually to hate your work and feel you are wasting your life in it. The feeling must be akin to that of a wild animal when its foot gets caught in a trap from which it realizes it cannot escape.

A man who hates his job is almost as bad off as a man who hates his wife. As other pastures look greener to us, so do other jobs look more attractive at times, but there can be solace to us, too, in the realization that other jobs could be worse than the one we have, whatever its faults.

Name a few? All right, why not? Think how much happier you are at your present job than you would be if you were—

The doorman to Hell during a heat wave.

The social director of a convict ship.

Lassie's understudy during an off-the-scene barking role.

Owner of the hatcheck concession at a nudist colony.

Modern medications, a rigid diet, and avoidance of emotional stress can heal an ulcer and can often prevent surgical complications.

A vegetarian in a sausage-stuffing factory.

Supply officer for Dracula. Valet at a hippie commune.

Orthopedist for Joe Namath. Customs inspector on duty when someone is caught smuggling Pandora's Box into the country.

A fat Christian in a Colosseum full of thin lions. A new broom in City Hall. A comedian on an afternoon television soap opera. A pacifist in Belfast. A liquor store owner in Mecca.

Abbie Hoffman's barber. Security guard at the Watergate.

Press agent for the Vietnamese war. Diogenes.

Think it over. Perhaps you should thank your stars for the job you have.

AND THE TRUCK WITH A PIECE OF WOOD JUTTING OUT A COUPLE OF INCHES—HOW ABOUT THAT?

Looking Backward

To many persons it must seem like more than 31 years ago that the stage was being set for U.S. entrance into World War II. Thirty-one years ago this country was still officially at peace, but aid had been extended to the Allies, and Washington was engaged in a diplomatic hassle with the Japanese which was to continue until the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Then, of course, the fat was in the fire, and the long struggle to defeat Germany and Japan began. The victory was not easily won, although in retrospect it may appear that there could have been no other outcome. Likewise, in taking a backward glance at wars won, the cost of the struggle is frequently overlooked.

The years that have passed since this country's involvement in World

War II have not been years of peace, but despite the huge cost of the Korean and Vietnam wars, the U.S. has made great economic progress. Despite a vastly inflated dollar, the standard of living is considerably higher than it was three decades ago.

If the years that have passed since World War II ended have not followed the pattern outlined by either extreme optimists or dour pessimists, this is understandable. No one can accurately predict events 10 years in advance in normal times, and no one would term the decades of the mid-century normal.

What will the remainder of the decade of the '70s bring? Some seers are so brash as to make all sorts of predictions, but many an American would be content if he could foresee events of the next 10 months.

Ever Upward

Price rises continue despite government efforts to halt the trend. The best government statisticians can come up with is that the overall rise has been slowed.

But there is no downturn in any category. Until some prices at least recede, inflation will continue.

The public has become so thoroughly accustomed to paying more than formerly when buying, that if prices were to begin to show genuine reductions, this development would be widely viewed with suspicion. The presence of a gimmick would be suspected.

This is a rut the public must abandon ultimately, because it is an illusion that permanent prosperity can be founded on debt and air. Rising prices spur activity and produce wealth to a point, but then fantasy eventually replaces reality.

Bad Press

By JEFFERY HART

If you want a sober treatment of the current political situation in Greece, then you must read "Greece Without Columns," a new book by London Sunday Times Correspondent David Holden. Holden concludes that the colonels' popular image as fascist is undeserved.

But if so, how is it that the colonels have such a bad image in Western Europe and the U.S.? Why should Sen. George McGovern's pledge to terminate all aid to that regime be regarded not as a joke or an absurdity but as a plausible policy move?

Holden has some suggestions to make. He takes note, for example, of the widespread but romantic notion that Greece and democracy are somehow closely linked. Thus it is always being said that the Greeks invented the word democracy as well as the political form; and it is true that Athens enjoyed a golden age of democratic government under Pericles. But the words oligarchy and tyranny are also Greek in derivation. Sparta and Alexander the Great were just as Greek as Pericles. And the course of Greek politics, ancient and modern, has been turbulent and violent, its typical regimes anything but Periclean.

As a matter of fact, democracy scarcely seems to flourish in the lands bordering the Mediterranean. It failed in the Iberian Peninsula. It never had much of an existence in the Balkans. There are many who think that it is on its last legs in Greece. There are many soon to be dealing with a set of Italian colonels. No doubt for cultural and social reasons, Israel seems the only country in the area where parliamentary government is firmly rooted.

Holden has an interesting explanation for the Greek colonels' uniquely bad press. He points out that those most immediately damaged by the coup d'etat in 1967 were also those with the most access to the European and American media.

The coup was directed against the political establishment in Athens, the leaders of which were well known outside of Greece and possessed contacts in the other Western capitals. It also struck at the Greek journalists, media people, and intellectuals of the sort that are familiar participants in international conferences on this or that, who lecture in foreign universities, and who share the assumptions of their European and American counterparts. Andreas Papandreu, who taught economics at Berkeley, returned to Athens for an unsuccessful fling in Greek politics, and now is in exile in Canada, represents the type.

The colonels, in contrast were unknown and provincial. And not only did they abolish parliamentary democracy, impose censorship and the like. They also exhibited all kinds of provincial tastes. They had a lamentable regard for traditional religion. They railed against bikinis. The spoke hardly any English or French. Holden is rather convincing that we shall have to deal with regimes of this sort, in Greece and elsewhere, whether we like it or not. And moral posturing a la McGovern is unlikely to change that fact.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." WHAT YOU MAKE UP TO YOU!

OF YOUR LIFE IS LARGELY

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH... by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Within a space of one half hour, two simple experiences highlighted a characteristic picture of man and his illnesses.

A tense, irritated taxi driver said as I entered the cab, "No wonder I have ulcers, with people like that."

He was referring to his last fare who apparently had hesitated a moment to long in finding the exact change.

Within minutes I arrived at the hospital. The very first person I encountered was the elevator man who, in response to my "Good morning" said, "A job like this could give you an ulcer."

Apparently, twice on the way down from the tenth floor, the door had opened to the "ghost" of someone who had rung the bell and then left.

The coincidence of these two similar personal contacts emphasized to me that almost everyone, right or not, seems to consider that his job is the ulcer-producing one.

The advertising executive, the bank manager, the doctor, the lawyer, the shoe salesman, the sanitation worker, and all the other Indian chiefs all seem to adopt the doubtful prestige that their occupation produces the most, the biggest and the worst stomach ulcers.

No one in any occupation, in any social circumstance, man or woman, child and adolescent, is ever completely free from business, professional, or scholastic pressures. But these pressures are no excuse for the person who "eats himself up alive," and develops ulcers or other evidences of stress in our modern civilization.

I have often wondered how many people understand what a stomach ulcer or a duodenal ulcer really is.

Perhaps if they did they would modify their physical and emotional patterns of living, and spare themselves the unpleasant and debilitating symptoms that can accompany these ulcers.

Normally, hydrochloric acid and gastric juices, especially, pepsin which helps to digest food, are produced in the stomach.

When there is a long period of emotional stress, dietary or alcoholic indiscretion, or overuse of tobacco, the acid and the pepsin increase in the stomach, irritate the delicate lining, and may produce the ulcer or "tiny sore."

Then, the cycle begins. Pain and discomfort increase emotional tension, more cigarettes are consumed, more acid is produced, the larger the ulcer becomes, the more the pain, the greater the tension.

The pain of an ulcer is described as a constant, gnawing ache, similar to that of a hunger pain. Almost always it is relieved by drinking milk and taking antacids which neutralizes the stomach juices.

Filling the stomach with simple, easily digested bland foods removes the "hunger pains" because the stomach wall has something to contract down on.

When once the diagnosis is made clinically (in the doctor's office), and confirmed by X-ray, the fixed pattern of living must be changed if the stomach ulcer or the duodenal (intestinal) ulcer is to be given a rightful chance to heal.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Universities seldom have won honors for financial acumen or administrative know-how, despite their other intellectual qualities.

They have done a certain amount of long-range planning, says Stephen Hall, vice president of Harvard, but "in general, they haven't been too intelligent about how they used their money."

When Hall was hired to handle a $40-million administrative budget early last year he found his 10 departments using "municipal accounting," or spending against a set sum and hoping to have something left.

His inheritance, Hall said, was an elaborate system for keeping track of costs, of accounting for money already spent, but with less emphasis on plotting the most effective use of the money in achieving university goals.

"Only one department broke down its budget on a monthly basis," said Hall, a former director of operations support at ITT-Sheraton Without such a breakdown, progress couldn't be monitored or corrections begun.

Hall now claims that these same department heads have become so financially aware and proficient that, as a team, "they could go into many a large corporation and effect a 100 per cent improvement."

Moreover, he added, Harvard would like to share its knowledge with other universities. "We'll all come out better off if we do. We're all in the same business."

The Harvard administrative plan began to take shape with weekly staff meetings of Hall and the administrators, whose responsibilities ranged from the university press to food services to buildings and grounds, and so on.

From these meetings — strictly limited to one early morning hour because "staff meetings fail if they are strung out" — Hall and the administrators began working out a written management plan made up of seven basic elements.

The first of these in the current management plan, the mission, is always stated in one sentence. This, Hall feels, forces each administrator to define sharply the contribution his department should make to the university.

Next, each administrator lists the scope of his job, the parameters of his responsibility, and lists also the amount that should be required to maintain that scope. Assumptions underlying the budget also are listed.

In food services, for example, G. Graham Hurlburt assumes, among other things, "that the cost of raw food will increase 7 per cent."

The next element is called "future impact," and it includes all those contingencies that might impact the plan. In this category, Hurlburt lists "union negotiations-spring 1973. Pressure will be on the side of higher wages..."

Following that, objectives are listed, both for the immediate year and for the next five. "To effectively integrate the combined work forces of Harvard and Radcliffe," is one near-term objective.

There follows a summation, in which the administrator verbalizes his concerns and hopes. The final section includes the usual charts, "but now they are tied into a system that makes them meaningful."

Before the final draft of the management plan is printed, Hall sits down individually with the administrators for a head to head, adversary discussion of the contents. These may last four hours. Sometimes there are several meetings.

Although these sessions can be blunt and grating, Hall claims that when the two men leave the room they leave behind their frictions, that they have reached a consensus, and that they are both committed to a common goal.

"This is where many institutions, corporations included, fail," he said. "They call it management by objectives but what they mean is that they set the objectives and you get fired if you don't meet them."

Instead, "we negotiate objectives and we both become committed to them. Negotiation leads to total commitment."

It is from this management book that Hall obtains the overall view of his operations. It is the basis also for a monthly progress report that is submitted to the president and the administrative visiting committee.

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — The man I feel sorriest for in America is the man who doesn't like his job or enjoy his work.

Of course, all of us at times complain about the ordeal by which we earn our daily bread. We may dislike the hours we work or find the man at the next desk or machine a dull nonentity, the girls in the office too homely, the straw boss an anachronistic Neanderthal, or become annoyed because the office cafeteria serves too few meatballs with the spaghetti.

But, on the whole, most of us are reasonably content with the work we do and wish only that it would pay better.

It must be horribly galling to the soul, however, actually to hate your work and feel you are wasting your life in it. The feeling must be akin to that of a wild animal when its foot gets caught in a trap from which it realizes it cannot escape.

A man who hates his job is almost as bad off as a man who hates his wife.

As other pastures look greener to us, so do other jobs look more attractive at times. But there can be solace to us, too, in the realization that other jobs could be worse than the one we have, whatever its faults.

Name a few? All right, why not? Think how much happier you are at your present job than you would be if you were—

The doorman to Hell during a heat wave.

The social director of a convict ship.

Lassie's understudy during an off-the-scene barking role.

Owner of the hatcheck concession at a nudist colony.

Modern medications, a rigid diet, and avoidance of emotional stress can heal an ulcer and can often prevent surgical complications.

A vegetarian in a sausage-stuffing factory.

Supply officer for Dracula. Valet at a hippie commune. Orthopedist for Joe Namath. Customs inspector on duty when someone is caught smuggling Pandora's Box into the country.

A fat Christian in a Colosseum full of thin lions. A new broom in City Hall. A comedian on an afternoon television soap opera. A pacifist in Belfast. A liquor store owner in Mecca.

Abbie Hoffman's barber. Security guard at the Watergate.

Press agent for the Vietnam war. Diogenes. Think it over. Perhaps you should thank your stars for the job you have.

Woman Pays Other Alimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge has ordered the second ex-wife of Gerald Paul Glickman to pay his first ex-wife $8,852.80 in alimony and child support.

Court documents showed the decision Tuesday stemmed from a unique arrangement in which the second ex-wife and Glickman agreed to the payments in exchange for the divorce between Glickman and his first wife. Glickman later married and divorced Mrs. Glickman No. 2. Mrs. Glickman No. 1 sued Mrs. Glickman No. 2 because her former husband was considered "uncollectible."

A court spokesman said Glickman now lives with his mother.

Woman Pays Other Alimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge has ordered the second ex-wife of Gerald Paul Glickman to pay his first ex-wife $8,852.80 in alimony and child support.

Court documents showed the decision Tuesday stemmed from a unique arrangement in which the second ex-wife and Glickman agreed to the payments in exchange for the divorce between Glickman and his first wife.

Glickman later married and divorced Mrs. Glickman No. 2. Mrs. Glickman No. 1 sued Mrs. Glickman No. 2 because her former husband was considered "uncollectible."

A court spokesman said Glickman now lives with his mother.

Shopping Hints To Save Dollars

By JEAN SHARP
TORONTO (AP)—If you'd like to save money food shopping, leave the children at home and eat before you go.
Judy Stang offers the suggestions as short-term ways to help you resist expensive impulse buys.
"All the things that appeal to children are at their eye level, and it's hard to tell a little fellow he can't have some cereal he wants."
On a longer-range basis, she suggests looking at your shopping habits. Miss Stang is director of consumer interests for the Ontario Food Council, a marketing arm of the provincial department of agriculture.

"People are very price conscious, but sometimes they don't look at the quality they're getting."
For instance, one store may offer steaks at a lower price than another but the lower-priced ones may not match the others in aging or good trimming.

"Fruits and vegetables can be expensive at certain times of the year; we're all tempted by out-of-season, imported produce. Again, it's very important that you get quality for the money. Sometimes a local store or a roadside stand can give you better quality than a supermarket."

"Be familiar with when local produce comes on the market. There are times when canned or frozen fruits and vegetables can be a better buy than fresh produce."

"People sometimes make price comparisons that really aren't accurate. For instance, people look at the price per pound of food rather than price per serving. A roast might have a ten-cents-a-pound difference between bone in and bone out, but the bone out could be less expensive per serving because you use more of it."

"If you buy frozen fillets of fish, you get four servings to the pound because there is no waste."

Miss Stang says it pays to know prices so that you know when a special really is a special, and even then, buy carefully.

"But what you need. If you can't store food properly or eat it fast enough, a special might not be special for you."

Learn enough about meats and produce to know what you're buying and how to use it, and consider how it's presented to you.

"Look at potatoes wrapped in a plastic bag or you might find when you get them home that you have green potatoes. Plastic bags let the light in; you may be better with a paper bag."

"When you buy foil-wrapped potatoes, you're paying 10 times as much as you pay when you buy a bag of baking potatoes. And foil is a bad thing to store potatoes in; you can get black rot inside because of the moisture."

"It's not always true that the larger the size the cheaper something is per unit. It depends partly on what is the most popular unit. Sometimes it's cheaper to buy the smaller size of instant coffee, because more people do so."

"Most people don't really read instructions or labels unless something goes wrong. Read the labels on frozen dinners, for instance, because they list ingredients in order of quantity. You can get a fair idea of how much meat is in it and how much you're paying for it."

But she says some cake mixes make a cheaper cake than you can make starting from scratch, and frozen french fries can be cheaper than home-made when you consider the cost of cooking oil.

"To be a good shopper today, you have to take it seriously because there are so many products available and so many sizes. It takes ability and some skill as a cook."

Pickaway Grange

STAR GRANCE
Mr. and Mrs. Ralph White of Bellville Grange in Greene County were guests of Star Grange when they met Tuesday evening for their regular meeting. Harold Furniss, Master, presided over the business session and heard the various reports.

Mrs. Wilbur Beathard, Women's Activity Chairman reported on her activities. Mrs. Joan Dawson reported that the Pickaway County Grange Youth are having an installation team again this year and will install the Grange officers. The group voted to have them come on Oct. 24 to install Star Grange officers.

The program, under the direction of Joan Dawson, lecturer, was entitled "Fall Roundup" and opened with each member telling what they did on Labor Day. Mrs. Francis Furniss gave a reading, "Just For Today" and the group sang, "School Days". She then conducted a Grange Quiz which proved very interesting and educational. Mrs. Fran Follrod read, "Autumn" and Helen Hammel played a piano solo, "Autumn Leaves."

To conclude the program, Mr. and Mrs. White showed slides of the 99th Annual State Grange Convention. At the close of the meeting lovely refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Grabill and Betty Ann and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Redman.

NEW YORK (AP) — Because of a sinus infection, poor planning, or both, the first 30 minutes of ABC's "Julie Andrews Show" wasn't taken up Wednesday night by a paid Democratic ad for President Nixon.

Instead, the entire Andrews show scheduled for Wednesday night was indeed shown, even though this particular program had been rescheduled to appear the night of Oct. 11.

If this is confusing, imagine what it is for the guys at the three television networks who have to clear time slots purchased by the Democratic and Republican presidential campaign committees.

Wednesday night may prove to be just an isolated case, but it was the kind of situation that'll give networks the willies right up until the day the next president is elected. It worked this way:

The "Democrats for Nixon" committee ordered a half-hour of ABC time, from 10 to 10:30 p.m., for the year's first 30-minute paid television commercial for the re-election of Nixon.

ABC cleared the time and shifted the scheduled Julie Andrews show — which had Robert Goulet as its guest star — to next Wednesday night.

Then early this week, the "Democrats for Nixon" committee canceled its half-hour order. Whereupon ABC hastily restored the Andrews-Goulet segment to its original broadcast date of Oct. 4.

Why was the order canceled? "The (committee officials) said they weren't able to put the program together in time," said an ABC official.

"Mr. Connally has a bad sinus infection," said a spokeswoman for the committee, which is headed by a prominent Democrat, former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

She explained that the former Texas governor had planned to tape the special half-hour program until he was forced to cancel out.

The cancellation gives the regular GOP campaign committee the first 30-minute television salvo on behalf of the President.

It's happening tonight at 9 p.m. on ABC, where the first half of "The Men" will be replaced by what a GOP spokesman calls "a film documentary of the President's record, both foreign and domestic."

The spokesman said no decision has been made yet on further time purchases for 30-minute shows about Nixon.

This apparent lack of firm decision on when and where half-hour campaign spots will be shown isn't limited to the Nixon forces.

The first 30-minute ad for Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., aired Sunday night on CBS. But only after his campaign committee made a last-minute time change to avoid pitting it against "Love Story" on ABC.

The uncertainty of it all is making life extremely hectic for network programming people and the special sales units all three networks have set up to handle political time purchases until Nov. 7.

Are the sales units dealing with coldly calculating politicians who have well-conceived television ad campaigns to "sell" their candidate? No way, says one network veteran who declined to be identified.

"They just seem to buy as the spirit moves them," he said.

'Red Tide' Disappears

BOSTON (AP) — A red tide of toxic algae has all but disappeared from the waters off the Massachusetts coast, but it remains trapped inside clam shells in commercial beds and may prevent clam digging for another eight weeks.

Dr. William Bicknell, state commissioner of public health, said Wednesday commercial harvesting of softshell clams and mussels remains banned, and it would be at least two weeks and maybe eight weeks before diggers can go back to work.

"The organism (red tide) is now probably down to its normal levels in the water," Bicknell said. "We are waiting for the toxin to naturally wash out of the shellfish..."

"The red tide issue is not over," he said, disputing a Food and Drug Administration statement earlier in the day that all shellfish now being harvested and shipped from New England are safe for consumers.

Bicknell said that before commercial clam beds are reopened, certain tests proving negative must be performed consecutively over a two-week period on every clam bed affected by the ban imposed Sept. 18.

Country Singer Plans Walk From Cleveland To 'Opry'

By JAMES STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—You've probably never heard the sweet strains of "Wonder Could I Love Her Anymore," but don't give up hope: Lee Otis, who recorded the song, thinks he's found his gimmick.

Otis, 32, a local country-and-western vocalist and guitar player, says he's going to walk all the way from Cleveland to Nashville's Grand Ol' Opry this month to publicize Country Music Month.

And, if Otis runs into a little celebrity status along the way, well...

"I was in Nashville once before," he said, "to cut my record, 'Wonder Could I Love Her Anymore.' It never got off the ground.

"Pretty hard to get it off the ground unless you got, well, guess you could call it a gimmick," Otis draws. Is the walk to Nashville a gimmick? Otis says he isn't above seeing it that way.

He doesn't plan it to be only that, though. He hopes that the walk will build the fire under country music, itself.

When Sunday rolls around, Otis will be out in front of the Lyceum Theater in suburban Willoughby, his singing duds on and his guitar on his back. He'll head down U.S. 42 to Cincinnati, then on to Nashville, comforted only by his guitar and a camper a local dealer has promised him as sleeping quarters.

He didn't choose the Lyceum Theater by accident.

That's where Otis has been playing on weekends, and he has noticed attendance is falling off. He thinks it's because of the X-rated movies advertised on the marquee and that parents are afraid they show X-rated movies between songs.

Well, country music isn't like that. "We can beat it," he said,

Huge Diamond Sold To Company

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone (AP) — President Siakka Stevens said Tuesday his government has sold a New York firm the 968.9-carat Star of Sierra Leone, the third largest diamond ever discovered.

He said the buyer was Harry Winston Inc., which holds a substantial share in production and marketing of diamonds in Sierra Leone. Stevens declined to give the purchase price but it is known the government had set a reserve figure of about $2½ million.

Monkey Memory Exercises May Help Stroke Victims

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A memory-taxing exercise for smart monkeys may be the key to ultimately developing a surgical treatment for language loss in stroke victims, a scientist reports.

For the past year, Dr. James H. Dewson III, head of the hearing and speech sciences section of the Division of Otolaryngology at the Stanford Medical School, has been teaching 13 monkeys to recognize sounds and to push color buttons to test their memories.

Through this system of measuring a monkey's short-range memory capacity, Dewson said he hopes eventually to determine why memory is impaired after a stroke damages the language-specializing part of the brain.

"The monkeys are still in training," Dewson said in an interview Tuesday. "It's fascinating. A lot of people, my colleagues, said it couldn't be done."

For his monkey school, Dewson chose 13 Macaque-Irsh monkeys, which are highly intelligent yet smaller and less expensive than chimpanzees.

Working under a $75,000 National Science Foundation grant at a Palo Alto Veterans Hospital laboratory, he first trained the animals to recognize sequence of tones and noises in a complex exercise demanding some thinking.

To obtain food, the monkeys must listen to a random sequence of two sounds from a loudspeaker, then press a red and a green lighted button, matching the color sequences to the sound sequences.

Within four months, Dewson said he will perform an operation on one of the monkeys, surgically inducing a "stroke" on one side of the brain.

Dewson said a second operation would be undertaken to remove interference caused by the stroke damage and to determine if such surgery would allow the undamaged part of the brain to assume language functions.

He said his research will continue for another three years but conceded it might be at least 10 to 15 years before such surgery, if warranted, would be performed on humans.

Egyptian Ambassador To Germany Named

CAIRO (AP) — Relations between Egypt and West Germany, frequently strained since the Munich commando attack, took a decided turn for the better Wednesday with the appointment of an ambassador to Bonn.

The selection, Foreign Undersecretary Ismail Fahmy, came as no great surprise to diplomatic observers. He served as Egypt's ambassador to Austria for five years and speaks German, French and English.

That's where Otis has been playing on weekends, and he has noticed attendance is falling off. He thinks it's because of the X-rated movies advertised on the marquee and that parents are afraid they show X-rated movies between songs.

Well, country music isn't like that. "We can beat it," he said,

Huge Diamond Sold To Company

FREETOWN, Sierra Leone (AP) — President Siakka Stevens said Tuesday his government has sold a New York firm the 968.9-carat Star of Sierra Leone, the third largest diamond ever discovered.

He said the buyer was Harry Winston Inc., which holds a substantial share in production and marketing of diamonds in Sierra Leone. Stevens declined to give the purchase price but it is known the government had set a reserve figure of about $2½ million.

Monkey Memory Exercises May Help Stroke Victims

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A memory-taxing exercise for smart monkeys may be the key to ultimately developing a surgical treatment for language loss in stroke victims, a scientist reports.

For the past year, Dr. James H. Dewson III, head of the hearing and speech sciences section of the Division of Otolaryngology at the Stanford Medical School, has been teaching 13 monkeys to recognize sounds and to push color buttons to test their memories.

Through this system of measuring a monkey's short-range memory capacity, Dewson said he hopes eventually to determine why memory is impaired after a stroke damages the language-specializing part of the brain.

"The monkeys are still in training," Dewson said in an interview Tuesday. "It's fascinating. A lot of people, my colleagues, said it couldn't be done."

For his monkey school, Dewson chose 13 Macaque-Irush monkeys, which are highly intelligent yet smaller and less expensive than chimpanzees.

Working under a $75,000 National Science Foundation grant at a Palo Alto Veterans Hospital laboratory, he first trained the animals to recognize sequence of tones and noises in a complex exercise demanding some thinking.

To obtain food, the monkeys must listen to a random sequence of two sounds from a loudspeaker, then press a red and a green lighted button, matching the color sequences to the sound sequences.

Within four months, Dewson said he will perform an operation on one of the monkeys, surgically inducing a "stroke" on one side of the brain.

Dewson said a second operation would be undertaken to remove interference caused by the stroke damage and to determine if such surgery would allow the undamaged part of the brain to assume language functions.

He said his research will continue for another three years but conceded it might be at least 10 to 15 years before such surgery, if warranted, would be performed on humans.

Egyptian Ambassador To Germany Named

CAIRO (AP) — Relations between Egypt and West Germany, frequently strained since the Munich commando attack, took a decided turn for the better Wednesday with the appointment of an ambassador to Bonn.

The selection, Foreign Undersecretary Ismail Fahmy, came as no great surprise to diplomatic observers. He served as Egypt's ambassador to Austria for five years and speaks German, French and English.

Sports stories and sports heroes are always popular subjects with boys. Three new books are now available which show in a simple format and excellent photographs some of the great moments and exciting men of sports. "World's Great Race Drivers" by Frank Orr gives the profiles of ten great race drivers in all classes of the sport. It tells of their preparations, their defeats, their victories, and, in some cases, their deaths.

"Great Upsets of the N.F.L." by Richard Kaplan gives the exciting accounts of ten games in which the underdog fought back to win an unexpected victory. The overwhelming joy and defeat of hard-fought games is evident in the photographs of this book.

"Star Pass Receivers of the N.F.L." by John Devaney gives profiles of nine great N.F.L. pass catchers. It includes stories of some of the games in which they played.

"Face Off" by Matt Christopher is also a sports book for boys. It is an adventure story about boys involved in playing ice hockey. Matt Christopher has written over thirty books about sports competition for young people and his formula is a good one. His stories usually involve a boy who wants to be good at a particular sport, but must first overcome some problem. His books are full of exciting accounts of close contests, and usually reach a climax when the hero overcomes his problem and helps his team win. These stories always present a lesson in courage and good sportsmanship.

Life can be difficult for an 11-year-old girl, especially if she is having trouble making friends. When her family moves from California to Havenhurst, New York, Sara Mayberry finds that the neighbors aren't willing to accept her slightly off-beat parents. Glenda Waite is the only girl who seems anxious to make friends with her. Glenda is the neighborhood misfit because she is fat — really fat! Thus begins the unusual friendship in Lila Perl's heartwarming story, "Me and Fat Glenda." Miss Perl seems to have a special insight into the wishes and sensitivities of young girls, and she is able to deal with them in a very understanding and humorous manner.

"Me and My Boners," by Roy A. Gallant, is a science book for young people which teaches bone structure. Through the text and pictures, Mr. Gallant shows the various parts of the human skeleton in different positions and compares it to the skeletons of other animals. He shows not only how bones are constructed, but also why they are constructed in a certain way, their purpose, and how they move. This book is more than just educational. The cleverly written text makes it very interesting. There are many new interesting and educational science books in the children's room now. Primary-grade school teachers should not overlook the opportunity to utilize these excellent books.

Junior Fair Tour Ends In Arrest

LOUDONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Ron Barton toured the Junior Fair tent in Loudonville this week — car and all.

Barton, 25, drove his 1963 sedan through the 600-foot-long fair tent, motoring between tables and exhibits along a seven-foot-wide aisle.

Barton was free on a $450 bond, after being charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, operating an unsafe vehicle and malicious destruction of Agriculture Society equipment.

GOP Candidates' Wives Given Tips On Etiquette

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Republican Congressional Committee has some advice for candidates' wives: Watch your cigarettes, lay off the gum and never look bored.

And bow your head during the entire invocation.

Those tidbits of political etiquette appear in the recently published "Wives' Manual," a 10-page booklet which tells spouses of GOP candidates the do's and don'ts, of ladylike behavior on the campaign trail.

"Considerate women never let smoke waft in another's face; they never leave butts burning in ashtrays," advises the manual. "Discriminate women never smoke on the street or when dancing; they never let a cigarette dangle from the lips or exhale through the nose."

Featured on the cover of the "Wives' Manual" is a beribboned girl elephant wearing a smile, red lipstick and pants suit.

The booklet was written by Mary Ellen Miller, special assistant to Congressional Committee Chairman Rep. Bob Wilson of California. She was aided by several wives of Congressmen.

To women whose husbands are running for the House of Representatives the manual suggests:

—Never talk loud, or argue about your husband or his political positions with anyone. Steer clear of controversial statements.

—Applaud as though you mean it.

—When your husband is speaking, watch him proudly. Never appear bored, even if you have heard the same speech repeatedly.

—When sitting on a stage, or at the head table, either cross your ankles or keep your knees together.

Meanwhile, both South and North Vietnamese battlefield deaths fell to their lowest level of the six-month Communist offensive.

The Saigon command reported that 352 South Vietnamese troops were killed, 1,458 were wounded and 60 were missing in action during the seven-day period ending at midnight last Saturday.

It claimed its forces and U.S. air and naval power killed 1,848 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops.

Rep. George H. Mahon urged Congress to retain final budget authority rather than approve Nixon's request for the power to slash funds for specific projects in order to hold spending for the current fiscal year to a $250-billion limit.

Mahon, D-Tex., took his argument before the House Rules Committee Tuesday. He is seeking Rules Committee clearance to offer on the House floor an alternative to the President's request.

—A steely hand shake is unladylike.

—Never let your picture be taken while holding a cocktail glass or a cigarette.

—It is safer not to drink liquor. But each candidate knows his own district, and probably what the reaction might be.

Cincy Antinoise Law Repealed

CINCINNATI (AP) — Noise, as far as politicians are concerned, is no longer against the law in Cincinnati.

Councilman Theodore Berry led the 6-3 vote to repeal the law. He said police had been using it to stop political sound trucks from urging people to vote.

"Besides," he told opponents who said a new law should be written before repealing the old one, "the disorderly conduct ordinance has provisions against loud and boisterous conduct."

3 Americans Killed In Action During Week

SAIGON (AP) — Three Americans were killed in action last week, the highest toll in five weeks, three died from nonhostile causes, four were wounded and one was missing, the U.S. Command reported today.

Meanwhile, both South and North Vietnamese battlefield deaths fell to their lowest level of the six-month Communist offensive.

The Saigon command reported that 352 South Vietnamese troops were killed, 1,458 were wounded and 60 were missing in action during the seven-day period ending at midnight last Saturday.

YOUTH ART CLASS — Miss Sara Aquino (left) macrame, glass cutting and candle making instructor, shows Mrs. Don McDill, Pickaway County YMCA secretary and director of informal education, some of the macrame crafts she

Sports stories and sports heroes are always popular subjects with boys. Three new books are now available which show in a simple format and excellent photographs some of the great moments and exciting men of sports. "World's Great Race Drivers" by Frank Orr gives the profiles of ten great race drivers in all classes of the sport. It tells of their preparations, their defeats, their victories, and, in some cases, their deaths.

"Great Upsets of the N.F.L." by Richard Kaplan gives the exciting accounts of ten games in which the underdog fought back to win an unexpected victory. The overwhelming joy and defeat of hard-fought games is evident in the photographs of this book.

"Star Pass Receivers of the N.F.L." by John Devaney gives profiles of nine great N.F.L. pass catchers. It includes stories of some of the games in which they played.

"Face Off" by Matt Christopher is also a sports book for boys. It is an adventure story about boys involved in playing ice hockey. Matt Christopher has written over thirty books about sports competition for young people and his formula is a good one. His stories usually involve a boy who wants to be good at a particular sport, but must first overcome some problem. His books are full of exciting accounts of close contests, and usually reach a climax when the hero overcomes his problem and helps his team win. These stories always present a lesson in courage and good sportsmanship.

Life can be difficult for an 11-year-old girl, especially if she is having trouble making friends. When her family moves from California to Havenhurst, New York, Sara Mayberry finds that the neighbors aren't willing to accept her slightly off-beat parents. Glenda Waite is the only girl who seems anxious to make friends with her. Glenda is the neighborhood misfit because she is fat — really fat! Thus begins the unusual friendship in Lila Perl's heartwarming story, "Me and Fat Glenda." Miss Perl seems to have a special insight into the wishes and sensitivities of young girls, and she is able to deal with them in a very understanding and humorous manner.

"Me and My Boners," by Roy A. Gallant, is a science book for young people which teaches bone structure. Through the text and pictures, Mr. Gallant shows the various parts of the human skeleton in different positions and compares it to the skeletons of other animals. He shows not only how bones are constructed, but also why they are constructed in a certain way, their purpose, and how they move. This book is more than just educational. The cleverly written text makes it very interesting. There are many new interesting and educational science books in the children's room now. Primary-grade school teachers should not overlook the opportunity to utilize these excellent books.

Rain Ends Nice Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Showers and thunderstorms in the Midwest and West today ended the idyllic autumn weather most of the nation had the last four days.

A broad area from Arizona and New Mexico northward to Montana experienced showers and thunderstorms with snow in the mountains. The storm system was spreading east and northeast.

Flash-flood warnings were posted in southern Arizona.

Showers also hit the lower Great Lakes region and the Ohio River Valley. Other scattered storms developed along the Gulf from Texas to the Carolinas.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 32 at Cut Bank, Mont., to 79 at Key West, Fla.

How far is the edge of the universe — a phrase we only hear in science fiction material, despite space travel to the moon.

"A radio wave from the moon takes about a second to travel to the earth," Kraus said. "We are studying celestial bodies with waves that must be measured in billions of years."

The observatory has been receiving and recording radio waves from the edge of the universe 365-days-a-year, 24-hours-a-day since 1966 when the Ohio survey of the sky began. The survey has another year to go.

"It takes a long time to scan the sky," said Kraus, an Ohio State professor of electrical engineering and astronomy.

"We carefully and systematically scan one section at a time. It is an enormous job."

Although the information being gathered is used in present day astronomical theory, it is a billion years old by the time it reaches the observatory which is located on U. S. 23 in Delaware County.

"In this respect we are historians," Kraus said. "We are observing the early history of our universe."

"Because of the distances we are looking back in time. We are studying what these bodies were like a billion years ago."

Astronomers take this billion-year-old material and form theories of the universe as it is at this moment, according to Kraus.

Radio Study Of Universe Proves Interesting Puzzle

Showers and thunderstorms in the Midwest and West today ended the idyllic autumn weather most of the nation had the last four days.

Flash-flood warnings were posted in southern Arizona.

Burma Now Seeking Tourist Dollar

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
PAGAN, Burma (AP)—A new hotel under construction on the dusty banks of the Irrawaddy River is a sign that Burma, after years of self imposed isolation, is actively courting the tourist dollar.

OLD WAYS — A bullock cart moves slowly past a 1,000-year-old Buddhist temple in Pagan, Burma, top picture; girls carry water cans on their heads, center; a young Burmese girl fills water cask from river to take back to her village, bottom.

The 48-room air conditioned hotel, to be called the Pagan Hotel, is being built in modern bungalow-style.

It will replace a guest house run by Union of Burma Airways (UBA)

Pagan has become a must stop for tourists visiting Burma. It has a complex of some 300 temples spread over 25 miles on the dry plains beside the Irrawaddy. Some of the best pagodas, built in the 11th century, still are intact. Others were destroyed by invading Mongols in 1287.

An increasing number of tourists are finding their way to Pagan, some on package tours organized in Bangkok, some flying individually on UBA, and others coming down from Mandalay on the old river steamers.

Until comparatively recently, visitors to Burma were limited to a 24 hour transit visa. General Ne Win, chairman of the Revolutionary Council which has ruled the country since a military coup d'etat in 1962 cut off what contact he could with the outside world. In the past two years, however, he has loosened up.

UBA, a nationally owned airline that uses Fokker Friendships as its main workhorses, covers the country like a bus company, carrying freight and passengers.

The new Pagan Hotel is being built to earn badly needed foreign exchange. With less than $60 million in foreign exchange reserves, Burma is finding it difficult to finance even essential imports such as medicines. Tourism is one way they can build it up.

Burma is a spectacularly beautiful country with rugged mountains, cool hill stations and wide rivers like the Irrawaddy and the Chindwin running from the Indian and Chinese borders down to the Gulf of Martaban. It also has beautiful unspoiled beaches on the Bay of Bengal.

According to official figures, 6,853 tourists visited Burma in 1969-70, and 9,892 came in 1970-71. Figures for 1971-72 are expected to reach 12,000 and tourist earnings about $1 million.

These are paltry figures compared to countries such as neighboring Thailand, which had more than 450,000 visitors and earned over $100 million from them last year. But the Burmese have made a start. Accommodation in Burma is primitive by European standards, consisting mainly of government-run guest houses which have all the charm of an army barracks.

In Rangoon the two major hotels are the Inya Lake, built a decade ago by the Russians in return for a shipment of rice, and the old Strand Hotel, once regarded as one of the great hotels of Asia.

Prices are high and all hotel bills must be paid in foreign currency.

But more and more tourists think it worth the trip, and among them are a considerable number of long haired young hippies who have included Burma on their itineraries on the way from Nepal and India to Bangkok and Laos.

Elias Backs Government On POWs

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Issues concerning the Vietnam war and prisoners of war are "in the best hands" when they are dealt with by the U.S. government, says a newly freed POW.

Maj. Edward Elias, one of the three POWs released by North Vietnam, said Wednesday that matters involving war and captive servicemen should be handled "government to government and not between a diverse bunch of individuals."

Elias spoke at a news conference at Maxwell Air Force Base where he is undergoing medical checkups after being brought home last week by a group of antiwar activists. He was captured after his plane was shot down last April 20.

But Elias, 34, said "These issues about the war, and about the prisoners of war issues, I feel have always been, and are now in the best hands that they could possibly be in. And that is the government of the United States of America."

The major waved off questions about the treatment of American prisoners in North Vietnam, saying he did not want to make any statement that might jeopardize the servicemen he left behind and their possible release.

Elias, whose residence is at Moody AFB in Valdosta, Ga., said that being chosen for release "came as a complete shock." He said he didn't know why he was given his freedom.

Elias, joined at the news conference by his wife, Georgia, said he plans to stay in the Air Force and make the military his career.

School Children In China Combine Work And Study

By Shirley Christian
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Their choice may not be chili suppers or candy sales, but schools in the People's Republic of China are expected to raise part of their own operating money.

Economic difficulties have always prevented China from having a hierarchical education budget, says a U.S. study. As a result, there is considerable local control of schools.

Significant features of the educational system are discussed in the World Survey of Education, published by UNESCO — the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

It covers the school systems of 142 countries and territories, including Taiwan. The 1,400-page book already had gone to press when Peking won a promise from U.N. officials to cease listing Taiwan in statistical publications.

China calls its system of local-national cooperation in education "walking on two legs." At the time Mao Tse-tung proclaimed the Great Leap Forward many nongovernment organizations were encouraged to help build and maintain schools. Local influence remains today.

"Factories, mines, communes, civic groups, street committees, the armed forces and private groups were encouraged to provide schools," the survey says, "and to finance them however they could, paying teachers in money or in goods according to circumstances."

"Schools were encouraged to set up firms, factories and other enterprises in an endeavor to sell enough products and services to make themselves at least partially self-supporting." The survey finds that the trend in the education of China's students is toward compressing the number of years required for a given course of study and toward beginning school at an earlier age.

After the Cultural Revolution of 1966-67, primary education was shortened from six years to four or five and the beginning school age was lowered to 5½ years from 7.

The secondary level, equivalent to American junior-senior high school, was compressed from six years to four. It is followed by two years of vocational training or work in industry, commerce or farming. High education, the survey finds, has been reduced from five years to between two and four years.

China teaches its children to combine work with play and study, even at the preschool age. In day-care centers the early work training is in feeding pets and cleaning and caring for furniture and equipment.

By the time Chinese students are in the low teens they are devoting six to eight hours of their 32-hour school week to "productive labor."

The main thing students have to learn during their primary years is some 3,500 characters of the Chinese language. They devote about half their school time to reading and writing the difficult language. Arithmetic, drawing, singing, history, geography and politics fill out the time.

The Chinese language remains a major subject at the secondary level, along with literature, foreign languages, mathematics, the sciences, history, geography, politics and physical education.

No Gravesite Records Made In Corona Murder Probe

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) — No official records were made on the locations of seven of the 25 gravesites found near Yuba City before deputies arrested Juan Corona last year and charged him with the slayings, an undersheriff has testified.

Sutter County Undersheriff Frank Cartoscelli testified under cross-examination Wednesday that he marked the graves' locations on two courtroom maps from memory because he had visited the locations many times.

"Do you have any idea what directions are all about? How can you check anybody else's work when you don't even know which direction is south?" defense attorney Richard Hawk asked.

Hawk's questions came as Cartoscelli was winding up his effort to mark all 25 gravesites with red arrows on two maps — an aerial photograph map and large wall mock-up of the Feather River area where the graves were found.

The defense attorney pressed Cartoscelli, trying to show that the dots he marked on the maps were in some cases dozens of feet off the sites of the actual gravesites. The officer did not expand on why there were no official records on location of seven of the graves.

Corona, 38, a Mexican national who had a farm labor contract business, has pleaded innocent to the 25 murder charges against him. He was arrested four days after the first grave was discovered May 20, 1971, and has been in custody ever since.

Because a juror asked to be excused in the afternoon to attend a relative's funeral, the trial lasted only half a day Wednesday.

New Kidney Concept Successful

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two operations in which a diseased kidney was removed, repaired, then returned to the human body were reported by a medical school official to the American College of Surgeons today.

Unlike kidney transplants, there is no danger of tissue rejection from a poor match when a person's own kidney is fixed and put back, Russell L. Lawson of the University of Oregon Medical School told the ACS's 58th Clinical Congress here.

The diseased kidney is placed in an iced saline bath allowing the surgeon six to eight hours for slow, meticulous repair without damage to kidney function, Russell said the process also allows for correction of defects in areas that otherwise would not be amenable to surgery, he said.

"The concept of removal of the kidney to accomplish surgical repair of blood vessels could also be extended to such problems as questionable kidney tumors where the kidney can be removed from the patient, carefully examined, and then placed back in the patient if a tumor is not found in the substance of the kidney," Lawson said.

The two successful removal and return operations were performed on a 31-year-old man who was admitted to the hospital with blood in the urine, and a 21-year-old woman who had a five-year history of severe hypertension, he said.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Their choice may not be chili suppers or candy sales, but school children in the People's Republic of China are expected to raise part of their own operating money.

Economic difficulties have always prevented China from having a hierarchical education budget, says a U.S. study. As a result, there is considerable local control of schools.

Significant features of the educational system are discussed in the World Survey of Education, published by UNESCO — the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

It covers the school systems of 142 countries and territories, including Taiwan. The 1,400-page book already had gone to press when Peking won a promise from U.N. officials to cease listing Taiwan in statistical publications.

China calls its system of local-national cooperation in education "walking on two legs." At the time Mao Tse-tung proclaimed the Great Leap Forward many nongovernment organizations were encouraged to help build and maintain schools. Local influence remains today.

"Factories, mines, communes, civic groups, street committees, the armed forces and private groups were encouraged to provide schools," the survey says, "and to finance them however they could, paying teachers in money or in goods according to circumstances."

"Schools were encouraged to set up firms, factories and other enterprises in an endeavor to sell enough products and services to make themselves at least partially self-supporting."

The survey finds that the trend in the education of China's students is toward compressing the number of years required for a given course of study and toward beginning school at an earlier age.

After the Cultural Revolution of 1966-67, primary education was shortened from six years to four or five and the beginning school age was lowered to 5½ years from 7.

The secondary level, equivalent to American junior-high school, was compressed from six years to four. It is followed by two years of vocational training or work in industry, commerce or farming. High education, the survey finds, has been reduced from five years to between two and four years.

China teaches its children to combine work with play and study, even at the preschool age. In day-care centers the early work training is in feeding pets and cleaning and caring for furniture and equipment.

By the time Chinese students

are in the low teens they are devoting six to eight hours of their 32-hour school week to "productive labor."

The main thing students have to learn during their primary years is some 3,500 characters of the Chinese language. They devote about half their school time to reading and writing the difficult language. Arithmetic, drawing, singing, history, geography and politics fill out the time.

The Chinese language remains a major subject at the secondary level, along with literature, foreign languages, mathematics, the sciences, history, geography, politics and physical education.

Computer Ranks Teays Valley 3rd In AA

LET'S HEAR IT—These young ladies will be leading the Circleville cheers Friday night when the Tigers host the

Connie Fosnough. Second row, Jane Guenther, Patti Ankom and Cindy Sims. Ann Yates was not present when the picture was taken.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lakewood St. Edward, Greenville, Massillon and Kettering Fairmont East are the Class AAA regional leaders in the first computerized ratings of the Ohio high school football season.

Teays Valley is ranked third in district 8 in the Ohio High School computerized football ranking system, released for the first time this week.

The ranking is based on the number of wins a team has plus the number of wins its defeated opponents have, taking into consideration whether the opponent is an A, AA or AAA size school.

Circleville, in the same district, is ranked in a six-way tie for 25th place and Logan Elm, also in the same district, for 38th. There are 68 AA teams in Region 8, including Pickaway County's three AA schools.

Logan Elm, with the recent consolidation with Laurelville, moved up into the AA category for the first time this year.

In Class AA, Geneva, Lima Central Catholic, Hanibal River and Cincinnati Reading are the regional pacesetters while in Class A the frontrunners are Kirtland, Marion Pleasant, Norwalk St. Paul, Zoarville Tuscarawas Valley and Middletown Fenwick.

Marion Pleasant and Norwalk St. Paul are deadlocked for the Class A region 10 lead.

The ratings are compiled by a Columbus firm for the Ohio High School Athletic Association, which will use them to select the state semifinals in each class for the first-ever Ohio playoffs in November.

They are based on the strength of a team's schedule and the schedules of the teams it plays. Victory margins are not considered.

Tigers Tackle Hurricane

"This is the most important game of the season up to this point," Circleville Coach Larry Cook stated, "and the winner is going to be in the driver's seat in the battle for the South Central Ohio League title."

Cook was referring to the upcoming contest with the powerful Wilmington Hurricane Friday night at Circleville's homecoming.

Wilmington will come into the fray with a 1-2-1 mark including a big 24-13 win over Miami Trace in last week's SCOL opener. The Tigers are sporting a 2-2 mark on the season and will be coming into the contest with a great 12-6 victory last week at Washington C.H.

"We will again be giving up size as Wilmington is a big, strong club with fine personnel," Cook commented.

"But we feel we can counteract this with a quick, aggressive, hard-hitting defense which performed so well against

"Our kids have been moving the ball on crucial drives and if we stay away from major mistakes in the game we can come up with a victory," Cook offered.

The Hurricane has a well balanced attack and can move the ball on the ground and through the air.

Quarterback Robert Raizk is a fine performer who will keep the defense honest with his running and throwing. His favorite receiver will be split end Keith Hill who has great moves and a fine pair of hands.

Sophomore Jackie Watson, 5-foot-10, 171-pound tailback, is the breakaway threat who must be contained by the Red and Black defensive unit. Brad Reynolds, 176-pound fullback, is the power man in the Hurricane offense.

PETE Breuleux, 6-foot-3, 215-pound, and Tom Hicks, 6-foot-1, 225-pound, are a pair of tough defensive guards who are backed up by Dave Hamilton, 190-pound, hard-hitting linebacker. These three anchor the 4-4 defense of the Hurricanes.

After costly mistakes hurt the Tigers in their first two games, they have suddenly found themselves and now have two victories in the record book.

The Tigers are a well conditioned club and seem to gain momentum in the second half. They are a well disciplined squad that refuses to quit when the chips are down and will battle to the final gun.

Not a big club, the Tigers make up for lack of size with aggressive play and quickness. Pride has also been a key factor in the efforts of the Red and Black.

Circleville coaches named Eddy Richter offensive Tiger of the week for his power running, fine blocking and his ability to gain crucial yardage against Washington C.H.

The coaching staff selected Dave Truex as defensive Tiger of the week for his outstanding work against the Blue Lions.

THE Tigers will continue to move from the T with multiple formations, including wing, slot, pro set and power I.

A 5-2 monster with zone pass coverage will be utilized by the Tigers to thwart the attempts of Wilmington.

Bookmakers See Playoffs Near Even

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Bookmakers say the American and National League baseball playoffs are nearly even money bets.

The defensive unit will be: Keith Davis or Rock Davis,

It will be homecoming night and fans will not be treated to a fine football game but a spectacular halftime performance.

Tigers, Oakland Set Best-Of-5

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers have won the chips in the American League Eastern Division and now head west for a game of higher stakes.

Next stop: Oakland, for the American League playoffs.

"They call us the over-the-hill gang and things like that because of all the veterans on our squad," says Tiger pitcher Mickey Lolich, "but I don't think we're that bad."

Apparently, some of the bookmakers in Las Vegas don't think that the Tigers are that bad, either. They're rated a toss-up to win the best-of-five-game series from the A's, winners in the Western Division.

The Tigers, who closed out the regular season Wednesday with a meaningless 4-1 loss to the second-place Boston Red Sox, will deal Lolich in the first playoff game Saturday at the Oakland Coliseum.

The A's ended their regular baseball season Wednesday night on a positive note by whipping the California Angels 2-1. In the other AL games, the Minnesota Twins pounded the Chicago White Sox 14-2; the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the New York Yankees 1-0, and the Kansas City Royals blanked the Texas Rangers 4-0.

Oakland Manager Dick Williams awaits the Tigers' arrival with confidence.

"The club we'll play has been my preference," says Williams. "That's mainly because we have had better success against the Tigers than the Red Sox."

The A's took the season series from the Tigers, eight games to four. They were 3-9 against the Red Sox, who lost the Eastern pennant by a half-game.

Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter will face Lolich in a duel of 20-game winners.

Marty Pattin fired a four-hitter as Boston beat Detroit Wednesday and deprived Joe Coleman of a 20-game-winning season. Coleman, instead, wound up with his 14th loss after giving up all of Boston's runs in six innings.

Pinch-hitter Don Mincher's seventh-inning single drove in for a start in the second game the winning run in Oakland's victory. John Odom, tuning up for a start in the second game of the playoffs Sunday, won his 15th game for the A's.

Bert Blyleven won his 17th game for Minnesota with the help of a 19-hit attack.

Johnny Briggs hit a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning for the game's only run and Jim Lonborg pitched a three-hitter to lead Milwaukee over New York. Roger Nelson pitched a two-hitter, both singles by Ted Ford, as Kansas City beat Texas.

He enters the playoffs with a .233 average, with 104 hits, 9 home runs and 50 runs batted in in 140 games.

"Naturally I'm disappointed with my hitting this year," says the 32-year-old Menke, who entered pro baseball as a $100,000 bonus baby with the former Milwaukee—now Atlanta—Braves.

"But as far as on the field," he adds, "I'm satisfied with what I've done at third base. It would have been a bonus if I'd hit well."

"Playing on this turf," he says, pointing to Riverfront Stadium's artificial surface, "I can't leg out some hits Bobby (Tolan) or Joe (Morgan) might get."

"Then there was the injury," he says, noting a late season leg problem, "and I just never put that hot streak together."

Michigan State will play its first night football team in nine years when the Spartans meet Southern California Sept. 30 in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

W. Foley Jones, a junior from Hampton, Va., has been reelected captain of Columbia University's basketball team.

ning but the Cubs' Jim Hickman tied the game with his 17th homer in the bottom of the inning.

Claude Osteen scattered eight hits to win his 20th game for Los Angeles. He was backed by two home runs by Steve Yeager and one by Tom Paciorek.

Jim Beauchamp's two-run homer in the sixth inning broke a 1-1 tie and gave New York Mets' rookie John Matlack his 15th victory. Montreal led 1-0 going into the sixth as Bob Bailey scored in the fourth on a double play. The Mets' first run came on an error, an infield out and a wild pitch.

Pittsburgh, Cincinnati Look To Playoffs

By TOM EMORY

Associated Press Sports Writer

"People don't relate to past performances," said Manager Bill Virdon of the Pittsburgh Pirates. "They relate to playoffs and whether you win or lose."

And for Virdon and his Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds, the regular National League season is "past performances," and their future is the league playoffs and a chance to face the American League in the World Series.

Pittsburgh, the East champion, ended the season Wednesday night, losing to Bob Gibson and St. Louis 4-3. Cincinnati, meanwhile, beat Houston the team that has been chasing the Reds in the West, 4-2.

"Now we just have to start all over again," said Pirates' pitcher Steve Blass, waiting for the playoffs to begin in Pittsburgh Saturday.

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson said his club is ready and, actually, much better than his league champion team of 1970.

"This has been our best pitching staff in three years I've been here," said Anderson.

Gibson finished the season with a 19-11 record. He helped his own cause against Pittsburgh by driving in the Cards' first run with a fifth-inning single. He also snapped his record of most 200-strikeout seasons by fanning 11 Pirates and running his total to 208. It is the ninth season of 200 or more strikeouts for him.

Johnny Bench hit a fifth-inning sacrifice fly to provide the Reds' winning run. Earlier, Dave Concepcion had hit his second homer of the year for Cincinnati.

In other National League

games, San Francisco beat San Diego 6-4, Philadelphia edged Chicago 2-1, Los Angeles downed Atlanta 4-1 and New York topped Montreal 3-1.

Bobby Bonds hit a three-run homer in the eighth to give San Francisco its margin of victory over San Diego. The Padres had a 4-3 lead on the strength of John Jeter's two-run blast in the top of the eighth.

A pinch hit home run by Deron Johnson in the eighth broke a 1-1 tie and gave Philadelphia a victory over the Chicago Cubs. Larry Bowa drove in the Phils' first run in the second in-

Cleveland Browns Acquire Nick Roman

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) —

The Cleveland Browns, who have gone through three defensive ends already in the young National Football League season, have acquired former Cincinnati player Nick Roman and will throw him into the fray against the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday.

With the season only three games old, three defensive ends have been lost to injuries. Latest to fall was Ron Snidow, who came out of retirement to help out but suffered a fractured leg in the Cincinnati game.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Lakewood St. Edward, Greenville, Massillon and Kettering Fairmont East are the Class AAA regional leaders in the first computerized ratings of the Ohio high school football season.

Teays Valley is ranked third in district 8 in the Ohio High School computerized football ranking system, released for the first time this week.

The ranking is based on the number of wins a team has plus the number of wins it defeated opponents have, taking into consideration whether the opponent is an A, AA or AAA size school.

Circleville, in the same district, is ranked in a six-way tie for 25th place and Logan Elm, also in the same district, for 38th. There are 68 AA teams in Region 8, including Pickaway County's three AA schools.

Logan Elm, with the recent consolidation into Laurelville, moved up into the AA category for the first time this year.

In Class AA, Geneva, Lima Central Catholic, Hanibal River and Cincinnati Reading are the regional pacesetters while in Class A the frontrunners are Kirtland, Marion Pleasant, Norwalk St. Paul, Zoarville, Tuscarawas Valley and Middletown Fenwick.

Marion Pleasant and Norwalk St. Paul are deadlocked for the Class A region 10 lead.

The ratings are compiled by a Columbus firm for the Ohio High School Athletic Association, which will use them to select the state semifinals in each class for the first-ever Ohio playoffs in November.

They are based on the strength of a team's schedule and the schedules of the teams it plays. Victory margins are not considered.

Tigers Tackle Hurricane

"This is the most important game of the season up to this point," Circleville Coach Larry Cook stated, "and the winner is going to be in the driver's seat in the battle for the South Central Ohio League title."

Cook was referring to the upcoming contest with the powerful Wilmington Hurricane Friday night at Circleville's homecoming.

Wilmington will come into the fray with a 1-2-1 mark including a big 24-13 win over Miami Trace in last week's SCOL opener. The Tigers are sporting a 2-2 mark on the season and will be coming into the contest with a great 12-6 victory last week at Washington C.H.

"We will again be giving up size as Wilmington is a big, strong club with fine personnel," Cook commented. "But we feel we can counteract this with a quick, aggressive, hard-hitting defense which performed so well against

"Our kids have been moving the ball on crucial drives and if we stay away from major mistakes in the game we can come up with a victory," Cook offered.

The Hurricane has a well balanced attack and can move the ball on the ground and through the air.

Quarterback Robert Raiz is a fine performer who will keep the defense honest with his running and throwing. His favorite receiver will be split end Keith Hill who has great moves and a fine pair of hands.

Sophomore Jackie Watson, 5-foot-10, 171-pound tailback, is the breakaway threat who must be contained by the Red and Black defensive unit. Brad Reynolds, 176-pound fullback, is the power man in the Hurricane offense.

PETE Breuleux, 6-foot-3, 215-pound, and Tom Hicks, 6-foot-1, 225-pound, are a pair of tough defensive guards who are backed up by Dave Hamilton, 190-pound, hard-hitting linebacker. These three anchor the 4-4 defense of the Hurricanes.

After costly mistakes hurt the Tigers in their first two games, they have suddenly found themselves and now have two victories in the record book.

The Tigers are a well conditioned club and seem to gain momentum in the second half. They are a well disciplined squad that refuses to quit when the chips are down and will battle to the final gun.

Not a big club, the Tigers make up for lack of size with aggressive play and quickness. Pride has also been a key factor in the efforts of the Red and Black.

Circleville coaches named Eddy Richter offensive Tiger of the week for his power running, fine blocking and his ability to gain crucial yardage against Washington C.H.

The coaching staff selected Dave Truax as defensive Tiger of the week for his outstanding work against the Blue Lions.

The Tigers will continue to move from the T with multiple formations, including wing, slot, pro set and power I.

A 5-2 monster with zone pass coverage will be utilized by the Tigers to thwart the attempts of Wilmington.

Bookmakers See Playoffs Near Even

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Bookmakers say the American and National League baseball playoffs are nearly even money bets.

The defensive unit will be: Keith Davis or Rock Davis,

It will be homecoming night and fans will not only be treated to a fine football game but a spectacular halftime performance.

Tigers, Oakland Set Best-Of-5

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers have won the chips in the American League Eastern Division and now head west for a game of higher stakes.

Next stop: Oakland, for the American League playoffs.

"They call us the over-the-hill gang and things like that because of all the veterans on my squad," says Tiger pitcher Mickey Lolich, "but I don't think we're that bad."

Apparently, some of the bookmakers in Las Vegas don't think that the Tigers are that bad, either. They're rated a toss-up to win the best-of-five-game series from the A's, winners in the Western Division.

The Tigers, who closed out the regular season Wednesday with a meaningless 4-1 loss to the second-place Boston Red Sox, will deal Lolich in the first playoff game Saturday at the Oakland Coliseum.

The A's ended their regular baseball season Wednesday night on a positive note by whipping the California Angels 2-1. In the other AL games, the Minnesota Twins pounded the Chicago White Sox 14-2; the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the New York Yankees 1-0, and the Kansas City Royals blanked the Texas Rangers 4-0.

Oakland Manager Dick Williams awaits the Tigers' arrival with confidence.

"The club we'll play has been my preference," says Williams. "That's mainly because we have had better success against the Tigers than the Red Sox."

The A's took the season series from the Tigers, eight games to four. They were 3-9 against the Red Sox, who lost the Eastern pennant by a half-game.

Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter will face Lolich in a duel of 20-game winners.

Marty Pattin fired a four-hitter as Boston beat Detroit Wednesday and deprived Joe Coleman of a 20-game-winning season. Coleman, instead, wound up with his 14th loss after giving up all of Boston's runs in six innings.

Pinch-hitter Don Mincher's seventh-inning single drove in for a start in the second game of the winning run in Oakland's victory. John Odom, tuning up for a start in the second game of the playoffs Sunday, won his 15th game for the A's.

Bert Blyleven won his 17th game for Minnesota with the help of a 19-hit attack.

Johnny Briggs hit a sacrifice fly in the fourth inning for the game's only run and Jim Lonborg pitched a three-hitter to lead Milwaukee over New York. Roger Nelson pitched a two-hitter, both singles by Ted Ford, as Kansas City beat Texas.

He enters the playoffs with a .233 average, with 104 hits, 9 home runs and 50 runs batted in in 140 games.

"Naturally I'm disappointed with my hitting this year," says the 32-year-old Menke, who entered pro baseball as a $100,000 bonus baby with the former Milwaukee—now Atlanta—Braves.

"But as far as on the field," he adds, "I'm satisfied with what I've done at third base. It would have been a bonus if I'd hit well."

"Playing on this turf," he says, pointing to Riverfront Stadium's artificial surface. "I can't let out some hits Bobby (Tolan) or Joe (Morgan) might get."

"Then there was the injury," he says, noting a late season leg problem, "and I just never put that hot streak together."

Michigan State will play its first night football team in nine years when the Spartans meet Southern California Sept. 30 in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

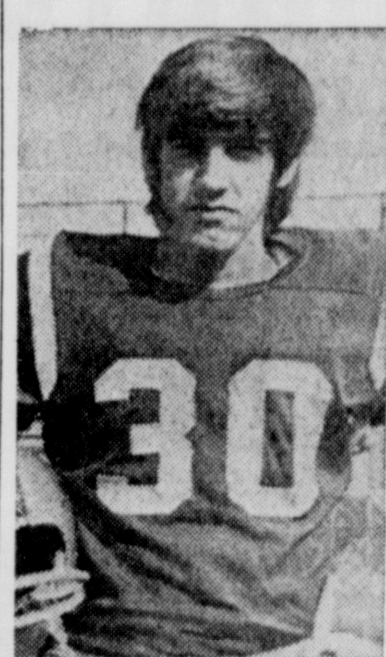

W. Foley Jones, a junior from Hampton, Va., has been reelected captain of Columbia University's basketball team.

But the Cubs' Jim Hickman tied the game with his 17th homer in the bottom of the inning.

Claude Osteen scattered eight hits to win his 20th game for Los Angeles. He was backed by two home runs by Steve Yeager and one by Tom Paciorek.

Jim Beauchamp's two-run homer in the sixth inning broke a 1-1 tie and gave New York Mets' rookie John Matlack his 15th victory. Montreal led 1-0 going into the sixth as Bob Bailey scored in the fourth on a double play. The Mets' first run came on an error, an infield out and a wild pitch.

Cleveland Browns Acquire Nick Roman

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) —

The Cleveland Browns, who have gone through three defensive ends already in the young National Football League season, have acquired former Cincinnati player Nick Roman and will throw him into the fray against the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday.

With the season only three games old, three defensive ends have been lost to injuries. Latest to fall was Ron Sainow, who came out of retirement to help out but suffered a fractured leg in the Cincinnati game.

New Chapeau Wins Race At Latonia

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — English Dancer and Three Martinis were expected to fight it out tonight in the $3,000 featured race at Latonia over 5½ furlongs in the eighth.

Favored Now Chapeau won the feature Wednesday night covering the six furlongs in 1:13 and paying $5.60, $3.60 and $3.40. Harboring placed for $3.80 and $360 and Steve A showed, paying $3.80.

Pittsburgh, Cincinnati Look To Playoffs

By TOM EMORY

Associated Press Sports Writer

"People don't relate to past performances," said Manager Bill Virdon of the Pittsburgh Pirates. "They relate to playoffs and whether you win or lose."

And for Virdon and his Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds, the regular National League season is "past performances," and their future is the league playoffs and a chance to face the American League in the World Series.

Pittsburgh, the East champion, ended the season Wednesday night, losing to Bob Gibson and St. Louis 4-3. Cincinnati, meanwhile, beat Houston the team that has been chasing the Reds in the West, 4-2.

"Now we just have to start all over again," said Pirates' pitcher Steve Blass, waiting for the playoffs to begin in Pittsburgh Saturday.

Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson said his club is ready and, actually, much better than his league champion team of 1970.

"This has been our best pitching staff in three years I've been here," said Anderson.

Gibson finished the season with a 19-11 record. He helped his own cause against Pittsburgh by driving in the Cards' first run with a fifth-inning single. He also snapped his record of most 200-strikeout seasons by fanning 11 Pirates and running his total to 208. It is the ninth season of 200 or more strikeouts for him.

Johnny Bench hit a fifth-inning sacrifice fly to provide the Reds' winning run. Earlier, Dave Concepcion had hit his second homer of the year for Cincinnati.

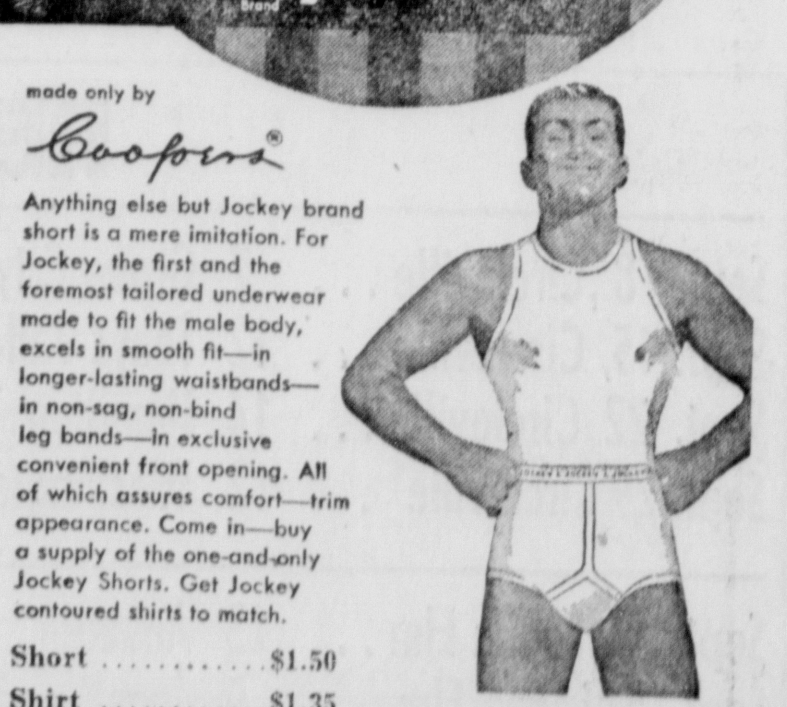

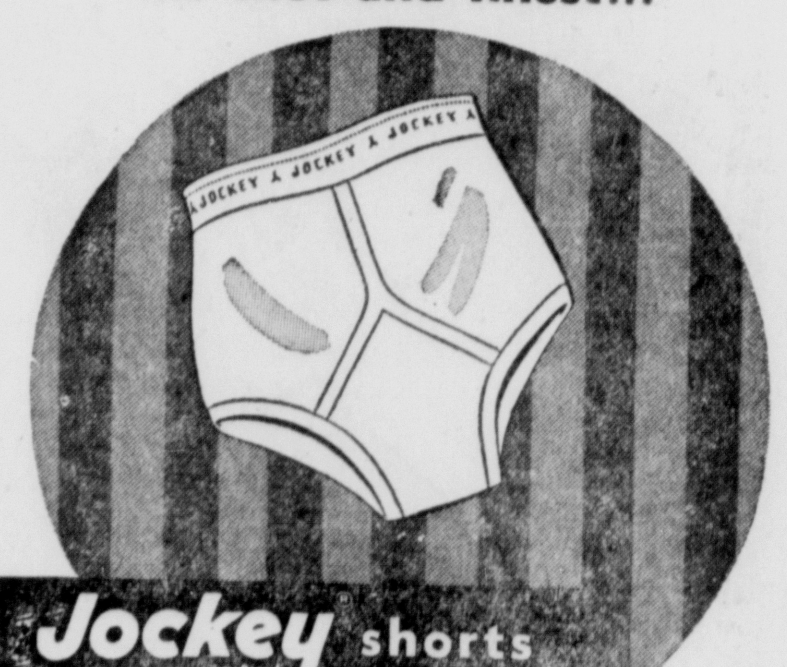

In other National League

games, San Francisco beat San Diego 6-4, Philadelphia edged Chicago 2-1, Los Angeles downed Atlanta 4-1 and New York topped Montreal 3-1.

Bobby Bonds hit a three-run homer in the eighth to give San Francisco its margin of victory over San Diego. The Padres had a 4-3 lead on the strength of John Jeter's two-run blast in the top of the eighth.

A pinch hit home run by Deron Johnson in the eighth broke a 1-1 tie and gave Philadelphia a victory over the Chicago Cubs. Larry Bowa drove in the Phils' first run in the second in-

Ohio Wealthy In Quarterbacks

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio is fertile territory for college and pro scouts seeking quarterbacks.

Regular quarterbacks in the National Football League include Len Dawson of Kansas City, a product of Alliance and Purdue University, and Dallas' Roger Staubach, a Cincinnati prep star before he went to Navy.

Also in the NFL, but as a defensive back for Baltimore, is Rex Kern, a Lancaster graduate, who quarterbacked Ohio State for three seasons.

Chuck Ealey, who led Toledo to the second longest winning streak of 35 victories, has become a Canadian Football League star in his rookie season at Hamilton.

In the college ranks, a trio of former state high school stars opened at quarterback for Big Ten teams on one Saturday this fall. They were Ted McNulty of Upper Arlington at Indiana, Dennis Franklin of Massillon at Michigan and Bob Bobrowski of Euclid at Purdue.

Ironically, Ohio State starts Greg Hare at quarterback, an import from Cumberland, Md.

Two teenagers playing for Ohio high school teams in 1971 already have been accorded conference player of the week honors this fall as college freshman quarterbacks.

Dave Buckley of Akron Kemore beat Maryland with three touchdown passes for North Carolina State and earned the Atlantic Coast weekly award. Greg Kokal, from Euclid, swept Mid-American honors for passing for 190 yards and two touchdowns in a rout of Ohio University.

Around Ohio: Warren's Moltenkopf Stadium houses two significant games this weekend. Warren Western Reserve, No. 6 in Ohio Class AAA ratings this week, plays No. 8 Warren Harding Friday night. Warren Kennedy, top-ranked in Class AA, entertains No. 3 Steubenville Catholic Saturday night.

Steubenville Catholic had two regular backs, Dan Kuczykowski and Reno DiCarantonio, out with injuries and still beat East Liverpool, the fourth straight Class AAA foe for the victors.

Troy's 23-game winning streak fell to Xenia 13-12 last week. Dayton Jefferson has its string up to 23 games, Warren Kennedy 17, Cory Rawson and Maria Stein Marion Local 16.

Tuscarawas Valley deliberately took a two-point safety in its 3-2 upset of Newark Catholic, top-ranked Class A last week. Valley punter Dave Meiser booted the ball out of danger on the ensuing free kick with about one minute to play. Tom Muzechuk's 23-yard field goal gave Valley its margin.

Francis Pa Joh, an exchange student from Gambia, Africa, kicked a 38-yard field goal for a Cuyahoga Falls Walsh Jesuit school record. He beat the old mark by five yards.

Bengals Defensive Leader In AFC For Past Week

CINCINNATI (AP) — "We weren't trying to fool anybody in the preseason games," said Cincinnati Bengals defensive coordinator Chuck Weber after the team was named the defensive leader in the American Football Conference this week.

The Bengals defense looked like anything but tough in preseason losses to Miami and Atlanta.

But Cincinnati is now in a three-way tie with Cleveland and Pittsburgh for the lead in the Central Division of the AFL. And, they have given up only 631 yards and 47 points in the 2-1 season thus far.

"What we wanted to do in preseason," said the former Cleveland Brown linebacker, "was, knowing our problems and personnel, work out all the bugs. Once the season opened, we could cover up our weaknesses."

Weber said the Bengals used "a lot of personnel" during the exhibition games "giving a lot of rookies a chance to make the team...and still give the people a good game."

The Cincinnati defense during those games was almost absent of variations.

"We were working out the techniques of playing it straight," he said.

Weber insists the Bengals are not using any more stunts—alternating charges and pass coverages—than last year.

"We are doing more stunting with the fronts," he said, with the front four—Royce Berry, Mike Reid, Bill Chomyszak and rookie Sherman White.

"Tommy Casanova—safety—isn't playing like a rookie, he never makes the same mistake twice, and I have the two best cornerbacks in the league in Lemar Parrish and Ken Riley," said Weber.

But the key to defending in the National Football League is studying game films, he said.

"Teams really show their tendencies on the films," he said. "This gives us a chance to throw man-to-man coverage against pass plays set for zone defenses and vice versa."

Cincy's Final Season Game Fails To Give Rose Hits

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tony Perez got what he wanted, Pete Rose didn't and Leo Durocher is looking.

Cincinnati took their final season game 4-2 from the Houston Astros and Tony Perez got two runs batted in totaling 90 for the season for the sixth straight year.

Pete Rose went 0-4, failing to get his 199th and 200th hit for the sixth time in ten seasons.

Houston Astro Manager Leo Durocher, whose team finished second in the National League's Western Division, 10½ games behind Cincinnati, said: "As far as Houston is concerned, I'm in the market for some winter trades, particularly for our pitching."

Perez opened the scoring with a double in the first inning scoring Joe Morgan and the Astros tied it in the second. Cincinnati went ahead 2-1 in the fourth and the game was tied again in the fifth.

Cincinnati then scored the winning run without a hit when Morgan walked, stole second and took third on a wild throw by catcher Bob Stinson. He came home on John Bench's long fly ball.

Ohio Wealthy In Quarterbacks

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio is fertile territory for college and pro scouts seeking quarterbacks.

Regular quarterbacks in the National Football League include Len Dawson of Kansas City, a product of Alliance and Purdue University, and Dallas' Roger Staubach, a Cincinnati prep star before he went to Navy.

Also in the NFL, but as a defensive back for Baltimore, is Rex Kern, a Lancaster graduate, who quarterbacked Ohio State for three seasons.

Chuck Ealey, who led Toledo to the second longest winning streak of 35 victories, has become a Canadian Football League star in his rookie season at Hamilton.

In the college ranks, a trio of former state high school stars opened at quarterback for Big Ten teams on one Saturday this fall. They were Ted McNulty of Upper Arlington at Indiana, Dennis Franklin of Massillon at Michigan and Bob Bobrowski of Euclid at Purdue.

Ironically, Ohio State starts Greg Hare at quarterback, an import from Cumberland, Md.

Two teenagers playing for Ohio high school teams in 1971 already have been accorded conference player of the week honors this fall as college freshman quarterbacks.

Dave Bucy of Akron Kenmore beat Maryland with three touchdown passes for North Carolina State and earned the Atlantic Coast weekly award. Greg Kokal, from Euclid, swept Mid-American honors for passing for 190 yards and two touchdowns in a rout of Ohio University.

Around Ohio: Warren's Molenkopf Stadium houses two significant games this weekend. Warren Western Reserve, No. 6 in Ohio Class AAA ratings this week, plays No. 8 Warren Harding Friday night. Warren Kennedy, top-ranked in Class AA, entertains No. 3 Steubenville Catholic Saturday night.

Steubenville Catholic had two regular backs, Dan Kuczykowski and Reno DiCarantonio, out with injuries and still beat East Liverpool, the fourth straight Class AAA foe for the victors.

Troy's 23-game winning streak fell to Xenia 13-12 last week. Dayton Jefferson has its string up to 23 games, Warren Kennedy 17, Cory Rawson and Maria Stein Marion Local 16.

Tuscarawas Valley deliberately took a two-point safety in its 3-2 upset of Newark Catholic, top-ranked Class A last week. Valley punter Dave Melser booted the ball out of danger on the ensuing free kick with about one minute to play. Tom Muzechuk's 23-yard field goal gave Valley its margin.

Francis Pa Joh, an exchange student from Gambia, Africa, kicked a 38-yard field goal for a Cuyahoga Falls Walsh Jesuit school record. He beat the old mark by five yards.

Bengals Defensive Leader In AFC For Past Week

CINCINNATI (AP) — "We not using any more stunts—alternating charges and pass coverages—than last year."

"We are doing more stunting with the fronts," he said, with the front four—Royce Berry, Mike Reid, Bill Chomyszak and rookie Sherman White.

"Tony Casanova—safety—isn't playing like a rookie, he never makes the same mistake twice, and I have the two best cornerbacks in the league in Lemar Parrish and Ken Riley," said Weber.

But the key to defending in the National Football League is studying game films, he said.

"Teams really show their tendencies on the films," he said. "This gives us a chance to throw man-to-man coverage against pass plays set for zone defenses and vice versa."

Cincy's Final Season Game Fails To Give Rose Hits

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tony Perez got what he wanted, Pete Rose didn't and Leo Durocher is looking.

Cincinnati took their final season game 4-2 from the Houston Astros and Tony Perez got two runs batted in totaling 90 for the season for the sixth straight year.

Pete Rose went 0-4, failing to get his 199th and 200th hit for the sixth time in ten seasons.

Houston Astro Manager Leo Durocher, whose team finished second in the National League's Western Division, 10½ games behind Cincinnati, said: "As far as Houston is concerned, I'm in the market for some winter trades, particularly for our pitching."

"I feel our club has a lot of work to do on fundamentals. We also need a major league catcher," said Durocher, who was hired late in the season after he was replaced as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

Durocher did not mention Houston catcher John Edwards who hit .269 for the season.

"It was disappointing," said Rose, "I could have had a couple of hits, but I always have trouble when I don't get any batting practice—because of the rain—and I bat against a guy who I haven't seen much." Mike Cosgrove was the losing pitcher for Houston.

"I hated to disappoint those fans who were pulling for me," said the Cincinnati leftfielder.

Perez opened the scoring with a double in the first inning scoring Joe Morgan and the Astros tied it in the second. Cincinnati went ahead 2-1 in the fourth and the game was tied again in the fifth.

Cincinnati then scored the winning run without a hit when Morgan walked, stole second and took third on a wild throw by catcher Bob Stinson. He came home on John Bench's long fly ball.

Tony Perez knocked in an insurance run in the eighth, his 90th run batted in.

Shortstop Dave Concepcion gleefully rounded the bases in the fifth inning after hitting only his second home run of the year. He also doubled.

Former Red Tommy Helms, now with Houston, said afterwards that he picks Cincinnati to defeat Pittsburgh in the National League playoffs.

"I like Cincinnati," said Helms, "because their pitching is going great right now."

Helms said he planned to cover the playoffs doing a column for the Charlotte, N. C. Observer.

Interest Rates Rising Again; Reaction Feared

By JOHN DORFMAN
AP Business Writer
(NEW YORK AP) — Interest rates are on the rise, but most economists remain confident there will be no repetition of the credit crunch which pinched the economy in 1969 and 1970.

Rev. Cyrus Accepts New Appointment

REV. and MRS. CYRUS
The Rev. H. David Cyrus has been appointed by the General Board of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union to fill the office of pastor at First Church of Christ in Christian Union on East Ohio St.

Mr. Cyrus has been a lifetime resident of Chillicothe. He was pastoring the Hilltop Mission Church, where he served for 15 consecutive years. Mr. Cyrus was ordained by the Churches of Christ in Christian Union in 1958 and has served on various boards and committees.

He is presently serving as chairman of the General Sunday School Board, is a member of the South Central District Board, Southwestern Evangelical Christian Youth advisory pastor, treasurer of the Ross County Evangelical Holiness Fellowship, and coordinator of the church involvement for the Bill Glass Crusade to be held in June, 1973, at Chillicothe. In the past Mr. Cyrus has held the office of Young Teen representative to the Aldersgate Publications, was chairman of the South Central District Sunday School Board and was ECY zone chairman.

Mr. Cyrus has been active in various civic and school-related programs. He has served as PTA president, was delegate and discussion leader on the recent state wide "Search for Consensus," and is presently serving as director of the Massville recreation program.

Mr. Cyrus and his wife, the former Judith Hopper, with their four children, Theresa 11, John 9, Betsy 7, and Stephen 3, will reside at 447 East Ohio St.

market reeling at every announced hike. News of prime rate hikes by major banks sent the Dow-Jones industrial average into a 12-point tailspin Aug. 24, and snapped a budding rally on Sept. 29.

With the adoption Tuesday of a 5 1/2 per cent prime rate by San Francisco's Bank of America, the nation's largest commercial bank, the 5 1/2 per cent prime became virtually universal — for the time being. Why are investors so concerned about interest rates? For an answer, one need only go back to 1969.

Prime rates — the interest charged by banks on loans to their most creditworthy customers — were then at 8 1/2 per cent, the highest in the nation's history.

"Companies like the Bell Telephone system had to pay 9 1/2 per cent," recalled Tilford Gaines, an economist with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. "Other companies with less credit had to pay 12 to 13 per cent — if they were lucky enough to be able to get money at all."

With no money available for expansion, many companies had to stagnate or cut back their operations. This in turn affected employment. Housing starts were at a low ebb as mortgage money cost around 10 per cent interest. The stock market sagged.

The crunch, Gaines said, was a function of a deliberate contraction in money supply engineered by the Federal Reserve Board. "The policy was aimed at stopping inflation. It helped to do that, but it also created a business recession."

Gaines, and many other economists, are convinced that the Fed has "learned its lesson" and would not attempt such a drastic contraction of money supply again.

"The rise in interest rates we're experiencing now," said William Nelson of Moody's Investors Service, "is a natural reflection of increased demand for money in an expanding economy. But it still makes people nervous because they remember the crunch."

USE THE CLASSIFIEDS

Social Security Applicants Are 'Screened'

People getting a social security number for the first time should apply at least a month before they'll need it, according to Harry B. Bieber, social security district manager in Chillicothe.

"Applications from people who don't recall having had a social security number before generally are screened to make sure a second number isn't issued to the same person," he explained. "Screening takes time, so apply for your social security number early and you'll have it when you need it — when you get a job covered by social security," he said.

A worker builds retirement, disability, and survivors protection for himself and his family by work and earnings credit to his 9-digit social security number. "Your social security number is yours alone and remains the same for life," Bieber pointed out. "Using more than one number can mean you're not getting full credit for your work and earnings."

When you get a job covered by social security, you should make sure your employer copies your name and number correctly from your social security card to his records. More than nine out of 10 jobs are now covered or eligible to be covered by social security, so the vast majority of employers will need the social security number of newly-hired employees.

The Chillicothe Social Security Office is located at 606 Central Center, phone 775-4950. Hours are from 8:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m., Monday through Friday, national holidays excepted.

higher rates than nearby communities in other states although served by the same firm. Nusken was asked in particular about Cincinnati Gas and Electric Co. whose customers in Kentucky pay less for electricity than those in Ohio.

Nusken noted that CG&E owns a subsidiary in Kentucky called Union Light and Power Co. That company serves an area about one-fourth the size of Ohio.

"The reasons for differences in rates between Kentucky and Ohio are numerous," he said. "One is that the statutes of Ohio and Kentucky vary. That means the valuations are computed differently, and the judgments of the two state commissions would certainly vary."

He continued: "Therefore, if less plant and equipment is located in Kentucky than in Ohio, the valuation (used for rate-making purposes) would be decreased, also." Nusken noted it also is possible that CG&E may have been granted an increase since its Kentucky subsidiary has had one. Further, he said it is possible the Kentucky subsidiary "may not have felt the need for a rate increase at the same time or of the same proportions as CG&E."

Social Security Applicants Are 'Screened'

People getting a social security number for the first time should apply at least a month before they'll need it, according to Harry B. Bieber, social security district manager in Chillicothe.
"Applications from people who don't recall having had a social security number before generally are screened to make sure a second number isn't issued to the same person," he explained. "Screening takes time, so apply for your social security number early and you'll have it when you need it — when you get a job covered by social security," he said.
A worker builds retirement, disability, and survivors protection for himself and his family by work and earnings credit to his 9-digit social security number. "Your social security number is yours alone and remains the same for life," Bieber pointed out. "Using more than one number can mean you're not getting full credit for your work and earnings."

When you get a job covered by social security, you should make sure your employer copies your name and number correctly from your social security card to his records. More than nine out of 10 jobs are now covered or eligible to be covered by social security, so the vast majority of employers will need the social security number of newly-hired employees.

With the adoption Tuesday of a 5 1/4 per cent prime rate by San Francisco's Bank of America, the nation's largest commercial bank, the 5 1/4 per cent prime became virtually universal — for the time being.

Why are investors so concerned about interest rates? For an answer, one need only go back to 1969.

Prime rates — the interest charged by banks on loans to their most creditworthy customers — were then at 8 1/2 per cent, the highest in the nation's history.

"Companies like the Bell Telephone system had to pay 9 1/2 per cent," recalled Tilford Gaines, an economist with Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. "Other companies with less credit had to pay 12 to 13 per cent — if they were lucky enough to be able to get money at all."

With no money available for expansion, many companies had to stagnate or cut back their operations. This in turn affected employment. Housing starts were at a low ebb as mortgage money cost around 10 per cent interest. The stock market sagged.

The crunch, Gaines said, was a function of a deliberate contraction in money supply engineered by the Federal Reserve Board. "The policy was aimed at stopping inflation. It helped to do that, but it also created a business recession."

Gaines, and many other economists, are convinced that the Fed has "learned its lesson" and would not attempt such a drastic contraction of money supply again.
"The rise in interest rates we're experiencing now," said William Nelson of Moody's Investors Service, "is a natural reflection of increased demand for money in an expanding economy. But it still makes people nervous because they remember the crunch."

County Chairman To Re-Elect Nixon Named

In addition to her political activities, Miss Sprenger enjoys acting. She is a member of the Roundtown Players, Inc. Community Theater.
